Tab B: Authority and Scope

- (U) Commanders have the inherent authority to conduct a Commander-Directed Investigation to investigate matters under their command, unless preempted by higher authority. Pursuant to this authority, General Ronald E. Keys, ACC Commander, appointed Major General Douglas L. Raaberg on 31 August 2007 to conduct the investigation into the underlying facts and circumstances that led to the unauthorized transfer of nuclear warheads between Minot Air Force Base, North Dakota, and Barksdale Air Force Base, Louisiana on 30 August 2007. The investigation should include any deviations from established safety and transfer procedures, as well as a complete review of security procedures.
 - (U) The Investigating Officer (IO) investigated the following:

Allegation

Between 29 and 30 August 2007, the 5th Bomb Wing permitted the unauthorized transfer of nuclear warheads from Minot AFB to Barksdale AFB in violation of AFI 91-111, Safety Rules for US Strategic Bomber Aircraft, and Commander, Air Combat Command's Cruise Missile Repositioning Order, REPORD (DTG: 141400Z Mar 07). SUBSTANTIATED.

Investigation

- (U) The purpose of this Commander Directed Investigation is to report the facts surrounding the allegation, the root causes and assign reasonable accountability. The results in this report are fully transparent. The testimonial documentation has been meticulously prepared to avoid impropriety. Additionally, I have provided the forensics to facilitate command-level consideration for disciplinary actions.
- (U) As the Investigating Officer, I have organized this report into three major categories. Each category is a phase in the investigation that includes a tier of individuals, a set of distinct events and a menu of oversights that led to this incident. The phases are:
- (U) Door opening to wheels up: Those individuals directly responsible for the chain-of-custody to verification-of-the-weapons breakdowns from the moment the nuclear shelter was opened to the time the B-52 was airborne.
 - (U) Scheduling to dispatch: Those individuals who had a direct hand in the scheduling of the Tactical Ferry pylons (preparation and receipt), oversight of maintenance actions and eventual dispatch of the weapons; this includes the lack of proper monitoring of the pylons moving from the shelter to the aircraft,
 - (U) Supervision to leadership: This is self-evident; however, it is a more refined focus of overall supervision to wing-level leadership at Minot AFB and Barksdale AFB.
 - (U) I conducted all witness testimonies. The testimonies began on Monday of Labor Day weekend, 3 September 2007, at Minot AFB. I finished the last interview on 27 September 2007.

Except for one day, my legal advisor and I spent nineteen (19) continual days interviewing over seventy (70) witnesses.

Oversight

(U) The Secretary of the Air Force asked the DoD Inspector General to provide "oversight of investigative...activities" initiated by the Air Force in response to the incident and to follow-up on recommendations generated by those activities. The Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee requested the Secretary of Defense for this independent review of the matter.

(U) The investigation was overseen b	y two DoD Inspector General Rej	presentatives to provide,
"on-scene oversight to the investiga	ition, directed by the Commander	, Air Combat

- (U) The chain of events, the testimony of those interviewed and the evidence presented show an erosion of adherence to rigid, Air Force nuclear procedures. This report will show how the intricate system of nuclear checks and balances was either ignored or disregarded.
- (U) ## The report identifies deviations from established safety, security and transfer procedures that explain the circumstances and details of the unauthorized transfer of nuclear weapons. Finally, the report identifies those individuals whose actions contributed to this unauthorized transfer and whose dereliction may warrant disciplinary action.

(	The B-52H aircrew arrived at the aircraft the morning of 30 August 2007. The crew consisted of the aircraft commander, an instructor pilot; the copilot, and an instructor radar navigator. The B-52 Instructor Radar Navigator (IRN) is responsible to the aircraft commander for checking the weapons prior to flight. The IRN is required to check all missiles. The check includes verification of the payload and confirmation of a SAFE status. However, the Instructor Radar Navigator only did a "spot check" on one missile, and only on the right pylon loaded with nuclear-inert payloads. If the IRN had accomplished a full and complete weapon's preflight, the IRN should have discovered the nuclear warheads.
	(U) At no time during their flight did the radar navigator apply electrical power to the missiles. The radar navigator electronically verified that the missiles were OFF (no power) and SAFE (not Armed) after the engines were started. That was the last time the radar navigator electronically accessed the status of the missiles. In short, the radar navigator never turned the power back on.
	(b)(1) ACC
	(U) To be clear, the aircrew could have jettisoned a missile or missiles in the event of an emergency that required reduced weight to remain airborne. Also, if the emergency situation had dictated, the crew could have jettisoned one or both of the pylons with all the missiles attached. To accomplish any jettison of a missile or missiles, the radar navigator would have applied electrical power only to the rack to which the missile was attached. Additionally, to jettison the pylon from the aircraft, electrical power would have to be applied to the pylon attached to the aircraft's wing. In all jettison scenarios, the missiles would have fallen to the ground.
	(b)(1) ACC

(U) This incident was propagated by numerous failures to follow stringent nuclear procedures. However, the catalyst for the failure began in the scheduling process. It further broke down because the supervisors; predominantly the Non-Commissioned Officers and Senior Non-Commissioned Officers, did not do their jobs.

Scheduling to Dispatch

- (U) Our audit of the maintenance logs shows the warhead rebasing changes and original tactical ferry flow plan did not contribute to the mistaken removal of the nuclear pylon, designated GZ203. Note: A GZ-pylon is a pylon loaded with Advanced Cruise Missiles (ACM). In military nomenclature the ACM is an AGM-129A. The catalyst for this failure began in the scheduling process. It further broke down because the supervisors; predominantly the NCOs and SNCOs, didn't do their job. They were the propellant that accelerated the wing's failure to meticulously track daily scheduled maintenance events. They did not account for key actions that would have prepared the pylons for air shipment on 30 Aug. Collective testimony shows a series of personnel changes or absences of leadership throughout July and August. Except for one Technical Sergeant put in charge of Special Weapons Handling (those that move pylon packages) most of those put in charge of the scheduling or superintendent positions were too new or incapable of doing their jobs. They trusted each other, but never verified the information they received.
- (U) The scheduling process and products the 5th Munitions Squadron used is very complicated to describe. Testimony shows the squadron's formal, signed and printed weekly schedule was disregarded by every individual. Instead, they informally used their 'working slides' throughout the week to prepare for scheduling and production meetings. They carried over the 'working slides' from the Wednesday NCOIC scheduling meeting to brief the work status at the Tuesday and Friday production meetings. For them, the 'working slides' were the de facto schedule.
- (U) Literally...from the Munitions Squadron Commander to the NCOIC and assistant NCOICs of each shop in the Special Weapons Flight; from the scheduling meetings to the actual work performed...they all assumed the other was doing their job. Ironically, none of them used the printed weekly-maintenance schedule as the overarching document to track weekly maintenance events. Again, every witness testified they came to the Special Weapons Flight meetings with blank notebooks. They relied on a set of slides produced by a very young Plans & Scheduling Airman (one-striper) to guide their discussion for the Tuesday and Friday production meetings, and the Wednesday scheduling meeting. This is where a failure occurred. Someone changed the schedule, but did not fully brief the others. The information was carried onto other slides, but not accurately carried to the printed maintenance schedule. The squadron commander, operations officer and Chiefs were not given sound information from the "shop chiefs."

(U) GZ203 and another pylon, GZ377, were identified on the 'working slides' for tactical ferry preparation; and, eventual B-52 air shipment on 30 August. This was all according to the original flow plan. A change of pylons occurred between the informal working slides and th	ıe formal printed schedule. GZ203 was replaced by a new pylon, GZ358. mosaic (b)(1) preparation. These two pylons were prepared for shipment the following week. However, a week later, on 22 August, the line supervisors used the same information from the previous week's 'working slides' to now reflect the movement of GZ203 and GZ377 from the nuclear shelters to the bomber. GZ358 fell off the formal printed schedule.

UNCLASSIFIED

Ironically, GZ358 vanished from the informal 'working slides.' The 5th Bomb Wing's formal printed schedule; the Wing Commander approved 21-165 schedule, now showed GZ203 and GZ377 scheduled for tactical ferry. Embedded in the wing's formal schedule is the 5th Munitions Squadron's weekly Maintenance Summary for the week of Aug 27-Sep 2 2007 which directs GZ203 and GZ377 to be transported to the flightline for tactical ferry. That is why the tow crews went and retrieved GZ203 and GZ377 from their respective shelters on Wednesday, 29 August. It was a scheduled event. The Wing was caught in their own faulty process and oversight.

AF (b)(3)
AF (b)(3)	GZ203 always

remained on the informal working slides and appeared on the "radar scope" when it was briefed for movement at 23 August production meeting and subsequently published on the wing schedule. No one noticed the changes occurring on the schedules.

(U) In short, the munitions squadron produced a weekly maintenance schedule...no one followed it, not even the commander or operations officer. The production meetings were a loose knit confederation of shop chiefs who did not bring key documents or a "bird's eye" view of what work had to be accomplished. They relied on their corporate memory. They used the wrong slides to follow the work.

Supervision to Leadership

- (U) In hindsight, one witness described this event as the "perfect storm" that could have been avoided. Little did that individual know the warning systems that could have prevented the unauthorized transfer of nuclear warheads from Minot AFB to Barksdale AFB had been turned off, ignored or never designed by the two air wing's supervision or leadership. In fact, it was a breakdown in training, discipline, supervision and leadership.
- (U) The chain reaction that supposedly started at Minot actually started at Barksdale. There were two warning systems that failed, faltered or frustrated the key personnel responsible for assuring nuclear weapons security...Minot's maintenance scheduling-to-dispatch processes and Barksdale's operational focus. Both were lost upon supervision and leadership.

Basic Information

- (U) The Boeing B-52 "Stratofortress" aircraft is of the land based heavy bombardment class designed for long range flight at high speed and altitude. The aircraft has provisions for ten crewmembers: a basic crew of five, three instructors and two additional crewmembers. The basic crew consists of Pilot, Co-pilot, Radar Navigator, Navigator and Electronic Warfare Officer. A highly variable weapons load may be carried on external pylons in combination with internal bomb bay weapons loads. Aircraft safety features allow for the jettison of weapons loads, to include cruise missiles and pylons as a last ditch measure, in the event of a serious inflight emergency. Missiles and pylons are jettisoned in a "safe" mode.
- (U) The AGM-129 Advanced Cruise Missile, or ACM, is a subsonic, turbofan-engine powered, winged cruise missile. This cruise missile can deliver a nuclear warhead in an air-to-ground mission with a very high degree of accuracy at long range. During captive flight, the missile's flight surfaces (wings and fin) are folded or retracted in a stowed position. Displays in the cockpit of the B-52 allow the crew to constantly monitor the status of the missile. After launch the missile's flight surfaces are deployed and the engine provides thrust within a few seconds. Computer controlled navigation directs the missile to its target. A non-explosive training or ferry payload, or a W80-1 nuclear warhead, may be installed in the missile weapon bay.

- (U) The wings were given great flexibility to schedule tactical ferry missions every other week with alternating points of origin. The order allows the wings maximum flexibility to schedule tactical ferry missions around other requirements. This REPORD also required the wings to deliver to Headquarters ACC a Mission Risk Assessment Plan covering all safety considerations for the missions. Both bomb wings were aware of this tasking, participated in several planning meetings, and made inputs to the REPORD.
- (U) Air Combat Command and Air Force Materiel Command evaluated two rebasing methods; tactical ferry and ground shipment. Tactical ferry was selected for a number of reasons:
 - PBD-720 will eliminate all AFSC 2W2X1 (131) and 2M0X1 (142) manpower authorizations effective 1 July 2009. PBD-725 is not achievable without them
 - Tactical ferry is a proven method for transporting Advance Cruise Missiles and Air Launched Cruise Missiles
 - The tactical ferry option required 8-months to complete as opposed to 24-months for ground shipment
 - Ground shipment requires an additional 27,600 man-hours due to additional handling, and test requirements.
 - Tactical ferry saved $1.6M

(b)(1)	AUU

- (U) The 5th Munitions Squadron's schedule is supposed to be a coordinated document that ties all work centers together. The scheduling process begins when each work center (with the key exception of Weapons Handling) forwards its maintenance requirements to the Missile Analysis section in Special Weapons Maintenance (SWM) Flight. Analysis then compiles the work center inputs as well as other maintenance requirements and forwards the inputs to 5th Maintenance Operations Squadron Plans and Scheduling (P&S). (Tab F40, p. 2; Tab F21, p. 2; Tab F18, p. 3)
- (U) On Wednesdays, the SWM Flight holds a scheduling meeting chaired by the Production Superintendent. This meeting is attended by each element NCOIC and a 5th Maintenance Operations Squadron P&S scheduler (an Airman, E-2). (Tab F40) P&S displays a draft schedule, derived from the inputs forwarded earlier by Analysis flight, on PowerPoint slides and takes notes on any changes made by the section chiefs during the meeting. These notes and changes are then used to create the weekly maintenance schedule that includes the job breakout. The job breakout is a listing of specific tasks to be performed along with their Job Control Number (JCN) and is often more detailed than the slides. (Tab F40, p.2)
- (U) On Thursday morning, the flight commanders meet with the 5th Munitions Operations Officer (MOO) and P&S for the squadron scheduling meeting. Only the updated P&S PowerPoint slides are briefed and not the accompanying job breakout. At the end of the meeting, the MOO and each flight representative sign the schedule cover sheet reflecting their approval of the weekly schedule. It is important to note the complete schedule is not briefed or reviewed by the flight chiefs, squadron superintendent, or the Munitions Ops Officer. (Tab F12, p. 2; Tab F40, p. 1)

Production Meetings

(U) The SWM Flight Production Superintendent chairs the Tuesday and Friday production meetings. The Tuesday meeting evaluates current production against the schedule. The Friday meeting centers on the current week wrap-up and looks ahead to the following week's operations. These production meetings are used as a venue for the different flight sections to exchange information pertaining to the maintenance schedule. All SWM Flight section NCOICs attend these meetings or send a representative in their absence. The Production Superintendent polls each representative for input and then writes their input on the white board in the SWM Flight supervision office. According to (b)(6) ACC none of the section representatives bring schedules to these meetings; instead they take notes in order to take the information back to their respective sections. (Tab F23, p.2; Tab F16, p. 4-5)

UNCLASSIFIED

(U) The Maintenance Operations Officer (MOO) receives a daily status briefing from Munitions Control personnel. The briefing consists of slides with information obtained from each flight within the squadron. The purpose of the briefing is to give the MOO a snapshot of the maintenance occurring in the squadron at that moment in time. It provides no summary of the work completed or scheduled to be done and does not highlight bottlenecks or delays in maintenance production. The briefing captures current maintenance but is ineffective as a tool for the Munitions Ops Officer to track maintenance productivity. (Tab G12, p. 1-4)

Operations Scheduling

- (U) Both 2 BW and 5 BW Plans & Programs sections were notified of the Tac Ferry message on 14 March 2007 and tasked their respective Operations Groups through Wing Scheduling to execute these missions. These missions were to be scheduled using the routine ACCI 21-165 scheduling process. (Tab G17, p. 1-2)
- (U) (CIPRO) After receipt of the repositioning directive, both wings began to develop flight procedures on how to implement the tasking, incorporating operational risk management procedures. The wings were directed to submit these procedures to HQ ACC/A3S. 5 BW developed a thorough Tac Ferry program which they shared with 2 BW, who then tailored it to their own specific operations. As part of the program, 5 BW provided briefings to selected aircrews; they were pilot-centric in nature, explaining procedures, processes and risks involved with the transportation of cruise missiles. Although these missions were not Higher Headquarters Directed (HHD), the 5th Operations Group (5 OG) supervision treated Tac Ferry sorties as HHD sorties. (Tab F41, p. 2-3) The 2 BW did not provide the same training to their aircrews and did not treat these missions as HHDs. Selected 2 BW aircrews were required to review an information binder on their own during mission planning and then brief the 2nd Operations Group leadership before mission execution. The 2 BW program neglected to emphasize navigator responsibilities, including the importance of a thorough weapons preflight. (Tab F19, p. 2; Tab F3, p.2)
 - (U) The 2nd Operations Group did not emphasize to the flying squadrons that Combat Mission Ready-Nuclear (CMR-N) crewmembers were required for these ferry sorties. (G17, p. 1-2; Tab F55, p. 2) The tasked squadron Director of Operations (96 BS/DO) was aware of the Tac Ferry requirements (minus the CMR-N tasking) and had ample time to establish the crew line-up for these sorties. The squadron scheduling process, which includes all flight commanders and the SQ/DO or designated representative, determined that these ferry sorties need only be filled by a minimum number of crewmembers normally required by T.O. 1B-52H-1. This precluded two weapons qualified navigators from accomplishing the weapons preflight. (Tab F27, p. 2)

Inspection History

PAST REPORTS...Since 1996...:

(U) I have completed a thorough review of past nuclear-related inspections of both wings. Holistically, there are no remarkable items in the reports that show a charted course of erosion in nuclear operations or adherence to procedures. Yes, there are specific non-compliance issues; even unsatisfactory performance. However, they are isolated problems that don't appear to cascade to the next inspection nor this incident. Oftentimes, the deficiency is corrected and recertified by the same inspection team.

The inspection teams were firm, fair and consistent. I will leave it to other audits to confirm that statement.

Minot AFB...12 Major Inspections:

- (U) Since 1996, Minot's 5th Bomb Wing has SATISFACTORILY passed six (6) Nuclear Surety Inspections. NSIs and Joint NSIs evaluate the wing's "ability to manage nuclear resources while complying with all nuclear surety standards." They received an UNSATISFACTORY grade on their 2003 Joint Nuclear Surety Inspection for an improper missile upload inspection item. The 5 BW also supports their partner 91st Space Wing's NSI. In 2004, though the 91 SW passed its NSI, the 5 BW received an UNSATISFACTORY rating for support. The "host-unit (read 5 BW) provided an unserviceable tractor to transport nuclear resources on numerous occasions."
- (U) Over the last eleven years the wing has received an EXCELLENT or COMBAT READY rating on the four (4) Nuclear Operational Readiness Inspections. Unlike an NSI which focuses on compliance, the NORI is a go-to-war test; it "evaluates the wing's ability to generate and manage nuclear resources and mobilize to deploy bomber reconstitution assets." These 12 inspections have been thorough.
- (U) We did not discount the preparatory Nuclear Surety Staff Assistance Visit Reports. They tend to be a little tougher since they are not graded, yet provide a set of observations that range from significant to repeat problems. The Jan 2006 and Jun 2007 reports don't reveal an impending trend.
- (U) Finally, the wing's Quality Assurance program dating back to Jan 2007 was thoroughly reviewed. Further look back did not give us appreciable concerns. However, I do note that a weapons handling crew of two (2) individuals did fail a no-notice evaluation of their nuclear storage access and Missile Safe Status Check procedures. It so happens that the NCO on the team that failed that 25 Jun 07 spot inspection is the same Staff Sergeant who acted in the same capacity the day the nuclear-loaded pylon was accessed and transported from the Weapon Storage Area. He was our first witness. He invoked his Article 31 rights before giving any testimony. (Tab F52, p. 1; Tab G11, p. 1-2) That is the only sliver of a trend that we've found.
- (U) In my view, there is no pronounced event or finding that points to a clear indication from the inspection reports that Minot AFB was lax in its adherence to nuclear procedures. The Operations Group and the Minot B-52 crews were well prepared for the tactical ferry program.

UNCLASSIFIED

They met every measure with alacrity. Leadership promptly submitted or accomplished every requirement outlined in the COMACC-direct Repositioning Order. Furthermore, they carried a full complement of crew members on each mission they flew. The flight records show that. It is very notable that Minot AFB assigned the right officer to build, coordinate and orchestrate their tactical ferry program. He is a very nuclear experienced radar navigator who facilitated a benchmark tactical ferry program from the beginning. He shared it equally with Barksdale AFB whose overall program was lacking or lackluster at best.

Barksdale AFB...12 Major Inspections and more:

- (U) Barksdale's 2nd Bomb Wing history of nuclear inspection performance is less than sterling compared to Minot AFB as evidenced in their recent UNSATISFACTORY rating during the 2005 Nuclear Surety Inspection. The 2005 NSI was also a combined Joint Nuclear Surety Inspection. They busted in multiple areas from weapons loading procedures, nuclear shelter entry & control deficiencies to the profound failure when B-52 crewmembers without Personnel Reliability Procedures (PRP) certification were allowed to handle nuclear-code documents. The seven (7) NSIs since 1996 were satisfactory except for this noted NSI and a MARGINAL grade in 1999. Of note, however, is the wing's inability to pass a Joint Nuclear Surety Inspection. They failed in 2000 for nuclear safety violations regarding equipment handling.
- (U) Their three (3) nuclear operational readiness inspections are unremarkable. The last inspection occurred in 2003. They received a SATISFACTORY. Their next NORI is scheduled for Apr 2008...it will be a combined NORI and NSI.
- (U) The trend isn't robust. Unlike Minot and Whiteman, the 2 BW appears to have unilaterally reduced the number of times they generate to nuclear status, albeit before having submitted a July 2007 request to waive both generations for this year. Let me put it in simple terms. This wing is required to generate at least 40 bombers twice a year; about 80 bomber sorties for the year. The wing commander can, through a local exercise, generate his entire bomber fleet to war-plan status or he can fully or partially participate in a joint, STRATCOM generation. For example, STRATCOM recently conducted a large-scale exercise, GLOBAL THUNDER, in early August. All bomber wings participated. Yet, Barksdale only sent three (3) bombers and associated crews to Minot to participate in the deployed portion of GLOBAL THUNDER. They had previously requested and were granted deferment from fully generating at home. They have yet to locally generate bombers in 2007! Also, our records show that over the last three years the wing has generated about sixty (60) sorties...far short of the almost two hundred (200) bomber aircraft they would minimally have been required to generate to nuclear war status. I'm sure the reasons are plenty to include PACOM Theater Support Plan commitments, but the other bomber units have similar requirements. This leads to other observations that will be covered in the Supervision to Leadership section.

The SVA is responsible for allowing access inside AF (b)(3) anducting the "opening checklist" as discussed in the (U) When handling teams access a storage shelter, they are required to follow specific procedures defined on their opening checklist. The opening checklist requires the team to accomplish the Missile Safe Status Checks on the missiles when the first two people enter the shelter together (two-person policy). This is usually accomplished by the A Lock and B Lock. Importantly, their job is to verify the type of payload each missile contains which requires shining a flashlight into a small, diamond shaped window and reading the label printed inside. They must also verify that all missiles are not leaking jet fuel, are not damaged, that they indicate SAFE and that nothing precludes further maintenance actions. Every time a shelter is opened, this Missile Safe Status Check must be completed on each missile before other actions can occur. Furthermore, the tow driver is required to verify the payload before hooking up the trailer to the pylon ready for transport.

Facts

(U) On 29 August 2007, the handling team was responsible for towing two Tac Ferry packages to the flightline. Based upon information from their supervisor, (b)(6) ACQ, the handling team understood the pylons were GZ377 and GZ203. (Tab F28, p. 2; Tab G1, p.5; Tab G5, p. 2) This handling team consisted of (b)(6) ACQ, the Sole Vouching Authority (SVA), (b)(6) ACQ, A Lock (A)(6) ACQ, tow driver for GZ377 and (b)(6) ACQ tow driver for GZ203. (Tab F28, p. 2)

SECRETIFICATION.

(U) At 0820 hours, the tow team opened Structure 1857 and staged GZ377 outside of the shelter. GZ377 contained the Tac Ferry placards described above. Structure 1857 was closed at 0842 hours. This same team then opened Structure 1854 at 0849 hours. According to (b)(6) ACG, he directed (b)(6) ACQ and (φ)(6) ACQ to do the Missile Safe Status Checks on GZ203 while he and (φ) ACQ (b) Adjace ted the remaining four packages inside the structure. (Tab F4, p.2) (b)(6) Acd stated that and (b)(6) ACQ. finished their checks to include the Missile Safe Status Checks. (b)(6) ACQ did not seeb)(6) ACC o(b)(6) ACC with a flashlight or checklist in hand performing the status checks on GZ203 so he asked b)(6) ACC if "GZ203 was good to go." According to (b)(6) ACC responded that it was. (Tab F4, p.2)(5)(6) ACC, then connected the tow vehicle to GZ203 and removed it from Structure 1854 at 0912 hours. GZ203 was not marked with the Tac Ferry placard. ony was contradicted by other witnesses. Specifically (NG) AC; testified that (b)(6) ACC conducted the Missile Safe Status Checks inside structure 1854 and that he was not told to perform any of the weapon inspections. (Tab F32, p. 2) In fact, according to b)(6) ACQ he had never performed these duties before as he was new to the job. (Tab F32, p. 2) Both (b)(6) ACQ and (b)(6) ACQ invoked their Article 31 rights and did not provide a statement. Because b)(6) ACC was the first witness to be interviewed, very little information was known at the time. He was contacted later for additional testimony. Before this second interview could begin, however, he was advised of his Article 31 rights as he had become a suspect. He initially waived his Article 31 rights but shortly after the questioning began he invoked his rights electing not to provide additional testimony. (Tab F4, p. 5) for GZ377, testified that he did not conduct the Missile Safe Status $(U)\Gamma$ (b)(6) ACC Check on GZ377 before he connected his trailer. He admitted this step was required in the technical order (TO), however since he was "under the impression that this package for sure was Tac Ferry," he did not do it. GZ377 was appropriately labeled with two "TAC Ferry" signs; one on each side. As for the status check of GZ203, he did not see anyone performing this task or even carrying a flashlight. (Tab F32, p.2) This point is critical as these status checks absolutely require shining a flashlight into the payload window. (b)(8) ACC (U) While the handling team was at the shelters that morning, (b)(6) ACC spoke on the phone. (b)(6) ACC asked when they were going to transport two pylons from her shop back to the storage shelter. (DX6) ACC told her that the tow team would be there after they finished transporting pylons GZ203 and GZ377. (b)(6) ACC, tolob)(6) ACC, that GZ203 had not been through her shop for Tac Ferry prep and therefore it was not ready. He told (b)(6) ACC that he would get back with her. (Tab F5, p.2; F15, p.2) (D)(6) ACC hung up the phone and looked at the Tac Ferry schedule (Tab G2, p.3) located on the "S" drive under plans and scheduling. He did not see GZ203 so he called (b)(6) ACQ who was still at the shelter. (b)(6) ACC told him that he was looking at the wrong schedule on the S Drive and that in fact GZ203 was scheduled to go to the fightline. [b)(6) ACQ also told him that (the Shop Chief) had written it on his white board in his office. (Tab G8, p. 1-3) After confirming this information by checking another schedule on the S drive and reviewing notes on the white board, he was convinced that (b)(6) ACC was correct. (Tab F5, p. 2; Tab G2, p. 2-4)(5)(6) ACC

(b) (b) Accook no further action and GZ203 was transported to the flightline.

- (U) The routine procedure is to position the two loads of missiles in front of the left and right side of the nose of the aircraft in preparation for mating to the jet. Essentially, the trailer-mounted pylons only have to be backed straight up under the left, right wings for uploading. The tow drivers drove the loads out to aircraft 1010, parked on STUB 29, unhooked and left the loads in front of the B-52. The two tow crews never returned after dropping off the trailers with pylon-loaded missiles. (Tab F48, p. 2)
- (U) It is also necessary to mention that throughout the structure opening and pre-tow procedures, b)(6) ACQ (Munitions Control) never verified the status of GZ203 and GZ377. According to his ny, it is not common practice for munitions controllers to verify status at the time of movement. Therefore, he granted transport permission for GZ203 and GZ377 to the flightline without conducting any verification procedures. (Tab F44, p.2) Had he done the required verification procedures, he would have recognized GZ203 was carrying warheads and only GZ377 was a Tac Ferry package. (Tab G25, p. 1-2, Tab G3)
- (U) A qualified weapons load crew had been dispatched to complete the next task of attaching the pylon-mated missiles to the aircraft. They are not required in the technical manuals to ever check the presence of a payload. When all pylons are attached, they complete a full missile systems check and then confirm each and every missile is SAFE. Again, no payload verification is required by the load crew. They are required to check the ARM-DISARM device for a SAFE indication (white "S" on a green background) and bi(6) ACQ. accomplished this task on all missiles. (Tab F46, p.2) Current technical data does not require weapons load crews to verify the missile for the presence of a payload prior to loading. (T.O. 1B-52H-16 and 1B-52H-16CL-1)

(U) Early on the	morning of 30 August, the crev	v of Doom 99 arrived at the	ir aircraft to prepare
it for flight.	(b)(6) ACC	was responsible t	o the (b)(6) ACC
(b)(6) ACC	for checking the weapons	before flight. (b)(6) ACC was i	required to check all missiles for SAF	E status and verify the payload.	b)(6) Acc did a "spot check"	of one missile on the right pylon that h	ad the Tactical Ferry payloads.	b)(6) ACQ did not properly ch	eck the entire load.
(Tab F2, p.2) Th	e takeoff from Minot was uneven	entful.

Analysis

(U) There are firm reasons to conclude that the 5th Munitions Squadron's Weapons Handling failed at the door. They failed to perform Missile Safe Status Checks immediately after opening structures 1854 and 1857. Once the doors were opened to the shelter, the team was required to do immediate status checks on all missiles before any other maintenance could be performed. (Tab G22, p. 2; Tab G31, p. 1-2) In consideration of all the testimony concerning the events at both Structures 1854 and 1857, a clear picture emerges where all members of the handling team enters the shelter simultaneously. The tow driver in this picture immediately brings his tractor up to the pylon trailer and starts hooking up the equipment as (b)(6) ACC go through the motions of looking at the remaining packages in the structure. According to Security Forces Central Security Control logs, Structure 1854 had been opened only for twenty-two minutes, when GZ203 had been moved out. (Tab G21, p.1-2) Perhaps, the sergeants checked the missiles for obvious damage or fuel leaks; however, based upon the overall investigation, twenty-two minutes is simply not enough time to accomplish a complete Missile Safe Status Checks of all five packages stored inside.

(U) This failure to verify the payload GZ203 is even more inexplicable in light of the fact that

UNCLASSIFIED

(U) Regardless of who was in charge of the operation (b)(6) ACC is clearly responsible as the other noncommissioned officer on scene. He also had a duty to ensure the written checklist had been followed. (Tab G23, p. 1-2) (b)(6) ACC prior duty performance is also suspect. He previously received two letters of reprimand; one for a security violation and the other was for failure to follow proper checklist procedures. (Tab G10, p. 1-6) Additionally, he was written up for a detected safety violation. (Tab G11, p. 1-2)
(U) Lastly (b)(6) ACC failed to perform Missile Safe Status Checks before towing GZ203 and GZ377 respectively. (Tab 23A) Some witnesses discussed the practice of tow drivers not performing these checks during a "continuous" or "concurrent" operation as long as they verified that in fact these status checks had been performed. (Tab G24; Tab F15, p. 4) There is simply no credible evidence that either tow driver had received this verification of the payload before connecting to his trailer and towing the pylons to the flightline.
(U) Other members of 5 MUNS should have also recognized GZ203 had not been prepped for Tac Ferry. In accordance with AFI 21-204, Nuclear Weapons Maintenance Procedures , paragraph 1.4.11, the "Munitions Control element is the focal point for planning, coordinating, directing and controlling munitions/weapons activities." Additionally, Munitions Control is required to maintain the "operation/non-operational status and location of all assigned nuclear weapons" (AFI 21-204, para. 1.4.11.2.6). In order to effectively direct and control a weapon transport operation, Munitions Control must first validate the operational status of the assets to be moved. This validation can be accomplished by verifying weapons status using MUNSCON or by checking the pylon's build-up sheet.
(U) The
(U) (b)(6) ACC testified that he was not trained to verify the status of Tac Ferry pylons during movement. (Tab F44, p. 2) His supervisor (b)(6) ACC testified that he had never trained his controllers to verify weapons status using MUNSCON or by checking the pylon's build-up sheet. At this point in the interview, he was read his Article 31 rights. He invoked those rights and did not provide a statement.
(U) Regrettably, the breakdown in checklist discipline continued when the 2 BW aircrew took possession of the aircraft. (b)(6) ACC failed to ensure all missiles contained Tac Ferry payloads. The IRN failed to follow the exterior inspection checklist by checking only one missile payload on GZ377 rather than all missile payloads on both pylons as required. (Tab G18, p. 2-4)

SECDET//EDD//MD

(U) (b)(6) ACC written testimony states that only one weapon was "spot checked" on the right pylon. (Tab F2, p. 2) When (b)(8) ACC was questioned about the checklist requiring that all "missiles" be checked, the individual stated that they were trained only to do a spot check of the weapons. According to the testimony of 2 OG leadership, some members of the 96th Bomb Squadron believed a habit or a culture of only "spot checking" had formed in the squadron. (Tab F55, p. 3) However, the majority of the witnesses interviewed, as that even if a spot check was permissible, it would require a spot check of both pylons. agreed

(U) Lastly,	(b)(6) ACC	failed to verify there was an entry in the aircraft forms i	ndicating weapons preflight v	was complied with. (T.O. 1B-52H-30-1, Aircraft Weapon Delivery .	Manual, Page 2-8, NOTE). (1	Tab G18, Tab F19, p. 3; Tab G7) The failures of the crew were cert	ainly significant as they were	the last opportunity to discover the error before the weapons left M	linot AFB.

Conclusion

- (U) The Handling team removed GZ203 and GZ377 from their respective shelters and towed them to the flightline without verifying the payload of either pylon. This failure to verify the payload of GZ203 is even more inexplicable in light of the fact that the pylon was missing the standard placard with a 8 ½ x 11 "TAC FERRY PACKAGE" sign. No team member noticed that GZ203 was missing the standard "TAC FERRY PACKAGE" signs even though GZ377 was correctly placard. Their failures as a team and as individuals are the root cause of the unauthorized transfer of nuclear warheads.
- (U) Despite being responsible for the monitoring the movement of these pylons, the munitions control center failed to verify their status. If the senior controller had accessed the software-tracking program (MUNSCON) to verify its status, he would have known instantly GZ203 was carrying nuclear warheads before the pylon had been uploaded onto the B-52.
- (U) The last line of defense failed when the aircrew, and more specifically the Radar Navigator, failed to follow technical order procedures. If the Radar Navigator had completed checklist, the individual would have discovered the six warheads loaded onto the B-52 aircraft and prevented their flight across the United States.

Phase II - Scheduling to Dispatch

Background

(U) The 5th Munitions Squadron Special Weapons Maintenance (SWM) Flight is organized into multiple work centers: Weapons Handling, Weapons Maintenance, Re-entry Vehicle Maintenance, Missile Maintenance, Verification and Checkout Equipment Maintenance, and Flight Support sections. Each section is responsible for a specific portion of the flight maintenance mission. For example, Weapons handling transports weapons/missiles from storage to the maintenance facility. The weapons/missiles are then handed to weapons maintenance who disassembles the entire package. From there missiles without warheads are transferred to missile maintenance and the warheads, pylons and ejectors are maintained by weapons maintenance. After several days, all the components are then assembled back into a packaged pylon by weapons maintenance and then transported by weapons handling back to storage.

This keeps their schedule even and stable throughout the 24-month cycle. The coordinated schedule had 2 BW ALCM pylons paired with 5 BW ACM pylons to ensu cheduled maintenance dates closely aligned. (Tab F16, p. 3-4; Tab F15, p. 3-4)

- (U) The 5th Munitions Squadron's maintenance schedule is a coordinated document that ties all work centers together. The scheduling process begins when each work center (with the key exception of Weapons Handling) forwards its maintenance requirements to the Missile Analysis section in Special Weapons Maintenance Flight. Analysis then compiles the work center inputs as well as other maintenance requirements and forwards the inputs to 5th Maintenance Operations Squadron (5 MOS) Plans and Scheduling (P&S). (Tab F40, p. 2; Tab F1, p. 2; Tab G15)
- (U) On Wednesdays, the Special Weapons Maintenance Flight holds a scheduling meeting chaired by the Production Superintendent. This meeting is attended by each of the element NCOICs and a 5 MOS P&S scheduler. P&S displays a draft schedule, derived from the inputs forwarded earlier by Analysis, on PowerPoint slides and takes notes on any changes made by the section chiefs during the meeting. (Tab G26A) These notes and changes are then used to create an updated set of slides reflecting the maintenance schedule and job breakout. (Tab G26) The job breakout is a listing of specific tasks to be performed along with their Job Control Number (JCN), and is often more detailed than the slides. (Tab G26; Tab F40, p.2; Tab F1, p.2)
- (U) On Thursday morning the flight commanders meet with the Munitions Operations Officer (MOO) and P&S for the squadron scheduling meeting. Only the updated P&S PowerPoint slides are briefed and not the accompanying job breakout. At the end of the meeting, the MOO and each flight representative sign a schedule cover sheet reflecting their approval of the schedule. It is important to note the complete schedule is not briefed or reviewed by the flight chiefs, squadron superintendent, and the MOO. (Tab F12, p.2; Tab F51, p.2)
- (U) The Special Weapons Maintenance Flight Production Superintendent chairs the Tuesday and Friday Special Weapons Maintenance (SWM) Flight production meetings. The Tuesday meeting evaluates current production against the schedule. The Friday meeting centers on the current week wrap-up and looks ahead to the following week's operations. These production meetings are used as a venue for the different flight sections to exchange information pertaining to the maintenance schedule. All Special Weapons Maintenance Flight section NCOICs attends these meetings unless a representative is sent, due to their absence. The Production Superintendent polls each representative for input and then writes their input on the white board in the SWM supervision office. According to the Production Superintendent, none of the section representatives bring schedules to these meetings; instead they take notes in order to take the information back to their respective sections. (Tab F16, p.4-5)

(U) The Maintenance Operations Officer (MOO) receives a daily status briefing from Munitions Control personnel. The briefing consists of slides with information obtained from each flight within the squadron. (Tab G12, p.1-4) The purpose of the briefing is to give the Muns Ops Officer a snapshot of the maintenance occurring in the squadron at that moment in time. It provides no summary of the work completed or scheduled to be done and does not highlight bottlenecks or delays in maintenance production. The briefing captures current maintenance but is ineffective as a tool for the Muns Ops Officer to track maintenance productivity. (Tab G12, p.1-4)

(U) On 15 August, the SWM Flight held its weekly scheduling meeting to develop the 20-26 Aug schedule. (b)(6) ACC, the acting production superintendent, led the meeting. (b)(6) ACC NCOIC of Weapons Maintenance, was not in attendance. (b)(6) ACC as sasistant, (b)(6) ACC as placed on swing shift (see Tab F34, p. 2; Tab G6 for his failure to update payload schedule). (b)(6) ACC directed (b)(6) ACC to represent him but gave her no direction. (Tab F1, p. 2) On 16 August, the 5th Munitions Squadron held its scheduling meeting. Both GZ203 and GZ377 were reflected on the slide with the task: "Upload Package." No one caught the error on the slide; (b)(6) ACC and flight representatives signed the schedule cover sheet. (Tab F12, p. 2) (U) Sometime after the schedule cover sheet was signed, Weapons Maintenance leadership directed missile analysis to change the schedule and replace GZ203 with GZ358. The preponderance of the evidence shows (b)(6) ACC was the one who gave the direction and there is no documentation or approval of the schedule change. Schedulers updated the "Job Breakout" (Tab G28) but not the slides. (Tab G29)
(b)(1) ACC
(U) At the Tuesday, 21 August production meeting, GZ358 and GZ377 were discussed and the SWM log confirms that GZ358 and GZ377 were in the IMF. Although the 6)(6)(6) ACC attended, he didn't know what was in the schedule. He had not been at the scheduling meeting the week prior and did not bring any schedule to the meeting. (Tab G14, p. 5; Tab F1, p. 2)
(U) On 22 August, the 27 Aug-2 Sep schedule was developed by SWM Flight. (Tab G28) GZ203 and GZ377 were on the scheduling slides as the pylons that would be transported to the flightline for Tac Ferry. (Tab G29, p. 4) However, no one noticed that GZ203 had not been prepared for Tac Ferry and that GZ358 had been prepared instead. (Tab G16, p. 13) The Munitions Ops Officer signed the schedule cover page approving the scheduling slides. Additionally, the "job breakout" had no tasks for Weapons Handling to move any pylons. (Tab G28, p.6) This is a routine process for 5 th Munitions Squadron.
(U) The last production meeting of the week was held on Thursday, 23 Aug because Friday was a Utilization (UTE) down day. The meeting was rushed because there was a scheduled power outage in the IMF and supervisors wanted to finish before it occurred. At this meeting the following week's maintenance actions were reviewed. The slides depicted GZ203 and GZ377 were to be Tac-Ferried the following week. (Tab G29, p. 4) The 6066 ACC

	(b)(6) ACC took notes at the meeting and wrote down GZ203 and GZ377 as the ones to move. (Tab G5. p. 4) (b)(6) ACC then transcribed his notes to a whiteboard in Weapons Handling and listed GZ203 and GZ377 as moving on 29 Aug. (Tab G8, p. 1-2) He also briefed (b)(6) ACC , and (b)(6) ACC (Tab F5, p. 2) The ineffective production meeting procedures and lack of supervision of the scheduling process led directly to this error. (Tab F16, p. 5)
	(U) The following week on 27 August, the new (b)(6) ACC took leave and a substitute (b)(6) ACC took over. However, (b)(6) ACC had not attended the previous week's meeting. Additionally, (b)(6) ACC (Missile Analysis) was preoccupied with other duties and (b)(6) ACC (Missile Analysis) (b)(6) ACC (Tab F1, p. 2; Tab F14, p. 2; Tab F18, p. 2)
	(U) TSgt I., 5th Munitions Squadron Weapons Handling Assistant Noncommissioned Officer-in-Charge, failed to determine the proper pylons to transport to the flightline to support the Tac Ferry mission. (Tab F5, p. 2; Tab G2, p. 1-4) (see also, AFI 21-204, Nuclear Weapons Maintenance Procedures, Paragraph 1.4.7.3)
	(U) Based upon Quality Assurance reports dating back to 1 January 2007, a review of personnel records of Weapons Handling personnel, and most notably verbal testimony, it was quite apparent that the section was in a state of disrepair during his tenure. Verbal testimony indicates that (D)(6) ACC was an ineffective leader who routinely chastised his personnel. (Tab F28, p. 2; Tab F51, p. 2-3) His subordinates frequently worked through lunch to complete scheduled activities but were not compensated in any way. Rather, he would keep them beyond normal work hours in an effort to assert his dominance as shop chief. He created a hostile working environment. While his subordinates worked well together, they clearly felt that they couldn't turn to (D)(6) ACC for help and advice. (Tab F28, p. 2)
(Б)	(U) Another missed opportunity to prevent this transfer occurred when b(6) ACQ failed to ensure his section produced an accurate schedule and track work order progress in the Weapons Maintenance section. (Tab G15) This failure allowed GZ203 to stay on the schedule for Tac rry delivery, when in fact it had never been in the maintenance bay for Tac Ferry prep. b(6) ACQ 6) ACQ as per REPORD from ACC. (Tab G17, p. 1) Had the build-up sheet in the Build-up Pack Z203 as per REPORD from ACC. (Tab G17, p. 1) Had the build-up sheet been included in the package and reviewed properly before being sent on the Tac Ferry aircraft to Barksdale AFB, Analysis personnel would have seen the serial numbers indicating GZ203 was loaded with W80-1 nuclear payloads. (Tab G3)
	(U) (b)(6) ACC was the (b)(6) ACC and failed to verify the proper maintenance was being performed. (Tab F23, p. 2) Had he ensured the maintenance actions were completed, he would have seen GZ203 had never been in the maintenance bay for Tac Ferry prep; even though it was scheduled for delivery to the flightline. This oversight allowed GZ203 to remain on the schedule for delivery to the aircraft.

CECDET//CDD//MD

- (U) We now know that the catalyst for this failure began in the scheduling process. It further broke down because the supervisors; predominantly the NCOs and SNCOs, did no do their job. They were the propellant that accelerated the wing's failure to meticulously track daily scheduled maintenance events. They did not account for key actions that would have prepared the pylons for air shipment. I would simply summarize their failure as too much trust and no verification. That is the key distinction in this phase of the investigation.
- (U) The Munitions Squadron supervision did not pay close attention to the schedule components. From the scheduling meetings to the actual work performed, they all assumed the other was doing their job. The irony is none of them used the weekly maintenance schedule as the overarching source document to track weekly maintenance events. This was all supposedly done in the bi-weekly work production meetings...another failure point.

(U) Furthermore, it is clear that officers v process. In general, the munitions squadre predominantly leave the daily activities colleadership. Only the (5)(6)(ACC)	on chain of command is focused upwompletely in the hands of the Chiefs a	vards. They and enlisted

(U) The munitions control center that is responsible for 'monitoring' the movement of these pylons did not verify the status of the pylons that were moved. They too did not use any written schedule to confirm that day's activities. Also, they had a software-tracking program (MUNSCON) that could have easily told the controller on duty that the pylons were prepared for tactical ferry with nuclear-inert payloads or still loaded with nuclear warheads. The software still shows the pylon that was flown to Barksdale AFB has nuclear warheads installed in each missile.

Conclusion

- (U) GZ203 and GZ377 were on the schedule for an "Upload Package" job profile. (Tab G26A, p. 5) A job profile is a standardized group of tasks. This profile does not contain all required tasks for Tac Ferry preparation. The "Tac Ferry Prep" job profile was actually needed in this case. This caused P&S to schedule the wrong job profile.

Phase III - Supervision to Leadership

- (U) In hindsight, one witness described this event as the "perfect storm." (Tab F5) The NCO regrets that this could have been avoided. Little did the individual know the warning systems that could have prevented the unauthorized transfer of nuclear warheads from Minot AFB to Barksdale AFB had been turned off, ignored or never designed by the two air wing's supervision and leadership. In fact, this incident was caused by a breakdown in training, discipline, supervision and leadership. Beyond the nuclear procedures that were to be followed in the Weapons Storage Area, the program was treated as if this was a nuclear-inert movement. AF (b)(3)
- (U) The Air Force has valid nuclear procedures. There is erosion which led to this incident.
- (U) The chain reaction supposedly started at Minot actually started at Barksdale. There were two (2) warning systems that failed, faltered or frustrated the key personnel responsible for assuring nuclear weapons security--Minot's maintenance scheduling-to-dispatch processes and Barksdale's operational focus. Both were lost upon supervision and leadership.

(U) Minot's 5th Bomb Wing has a very strong operational "warning system." Its crew force would have prevented the inadvertent flight of nuclear weapons. However, their maintenance scheduling faltered due to a lack of leadership and supervision.

(ACM). In military nomenclature the ACM is an AGM-129A. The catalyst for this failure began in the scheduling process. It further broke down because the supervisors; predominantly the NCOs and SNCOs, did not do their job. They did not account for key actions that would have prepared the pylons for air shipment on 30 August. Collective testimony shows a series of personnel changes or absences of leadership throughout July and August. Except for one Technical Sergeant put in charge of Special Weapons Handling (those that move pylon packages) most of those put in charge of the scheduling or superintendent positions were too new or incapable of doing their jobs. They trusted each other, but never verified the information they received.

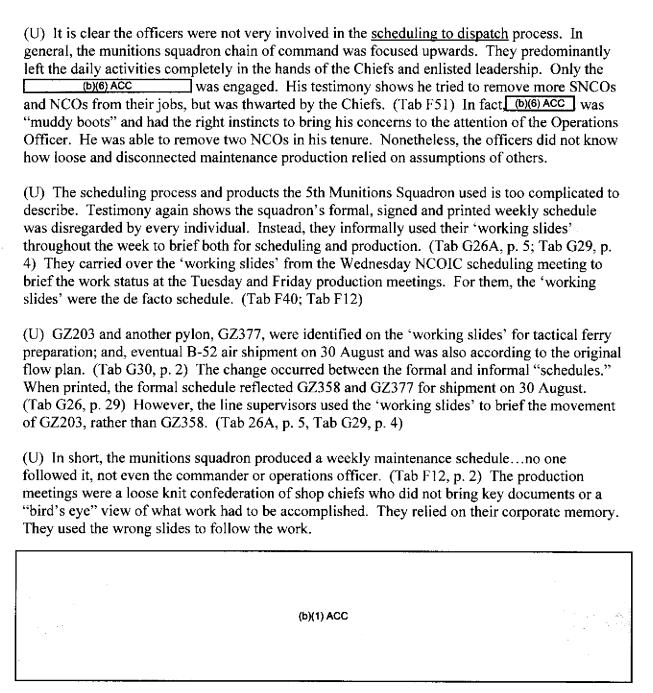

(U) Literally...from the Munitions Squadron Commander to the NCOIC and assistant NCOICs of each shop in the Special Weapons Flight; from the scheduling meetings to the actual work performed...they all assumed the other was doing their job. Ironically, none of them used the printed weekly-maintenance schedule as the overarching document to track weekly maintenance events. Again, every witness testified they came to the Special Weapons Flight meetings with blank notebooks. They relied on a set of slides produced by a very young Plans & Scheduling Airman (Amn W.) to guide their discussion for the Tuesday and Friday production meetings, and the Wednesday scheduling meeting. (Tab F40, G26A, p.5; G29, p. 4) This is where a failure occurred. Someone changed the schedule, but did not fully brief the others. The information was carried onto other slides, but not accurately carried to the printed maintenance schedule. (Tab G26, p.29) The squadron commander, operations officer and chiefs were not given sound information from the "shop chiefs."

(U) Unbeknownst to the squadron, group and wing leaders; there were two people in the munitions squadron who really knew what was occurring on a daily basis with regards to nuclear munitions maintenancea (b)(6) ACC (b)(6) ACC (Tab F23) and a (b)(6) ACC who had strong knowledge of what pylons were being or had been worked on. (Tab F15) They actually could have prevented this incident had they known what was transpiring.
(U) The 65(6) ACC as he is called, did not attend the most important meetings during the final weeks. His testimony shows he was uncomfortable with his replacement's ability to do the job. Yes, he had surfaced that with leadership, but no action was taken to find a suitable production superintendent replacement. The 66(6) ACC would have stopped this chain reaction because he intimately understood the flow plan, had given strict guidance on the priority of effort and attended all the meetings that kept the proper work flowing. This was his job and he was very good at it. Again, his testimony shows his level of competence to be above reproach. He had worked diligently to train his replacement. Yet, he knew he eventually had to hand over the "keys to the car" to his replacement. (Tab F23) The 65(6) ACC didn't have the technical understanding of the job, nor showed it during his testimony. (F54)
(U) Unlike the Production Superintendent, the
(U) The preponderance of the evidence shows the NCOIC of (b)(6) ACC had changed the schedule. He changed the order of the shipment from GZ203 to another pylon based on the earlier due date of the components on another pylon and that pylon was GZ358. (b)(1) mosaic ACC Maintenance logs show that GZ358 had been prepared for tactical ferry. The fact GZ358 was ready for shipment had never been carried through the scheduling products or meetings. It was lost upon everyone. The NCOIC of Weapons Maintenance is responsible for making the change and not communicating it to others.

(U) When the crews accessed and towed GZ377 from Shelter 1857, GZ203 from Shelter 1854 they were supposedly monitored by the Munitions Control Center. Neither the NCOIC nor the controller on duty used any written schedule to confirm that day's activities. Also, they had at their disposal a software-tracking program (MUNSCON) which would have immediately notified the controller on duty if one of the pylons the crew were moving was still loaded with nuclear warheads; the other without. The supervisor and controller never verified the status of either pylon throughout the movement process. MUNSCON would have told them had they used it as they have been taught and directed.

- (U) Operationally, the 5 BW had assigned the right planning officer. He is a nuclear-experienced [IDX6] ACC and he is also a [(DX6)ACC] He authored, facilitated and orchestrated an incredible program for the entire B-52 community. (Tab G20, p. 1-10) For the aircrews, he designed three key products.
- (U) The 5 BW tactical ferry plan was sound. It gave the aircrews and leadership the right focus. The plan was well written, coordinated and sent to Air Combat Command headquarters and their sister wing. There were three major products that formed the bulwark of stability for the B-52 crews. First, he fashioned a training course for all crews to receive academic and simulator training. He knew ferrying missiles aboard a B-52 was extraordinary for the younger crew force. This training course even covered the nuances of how to check each missile and verify the various nuclear-inert or nuclear-training payloads were installed. Second, he authored a pre-takeoff briefing. It treats the ferry flight as a higher-headquarters directed mission. It sets the tone for both the crew and their leadership. Third, he accomplished what he was tasked to do...provide an Operational Risk Management assessment of the wing's personal program and submit it to Air Combat Command. He shared all three products equally with Barksdale AFB.
- (U) Minot's Wing Commander and Maintenance Group Commander have been in command since June 2007. They were just beginning to gain insights as to the quality of their respective organizations. They both participated in the early August GLOBAL THUNDER exercise. This is a STRATCOM-directed nuclear exercise. This was their first opportunity to see the nuclear generation cycle and assess the wing and group's performance. Both had visited the Weapon Storage Area during their immersion program as new commanders. Nothing remarkable stands out in their leadership performance. The Maintenance Group Commander was in the process of pushing for more munitions products in the wing's schedule. Finally, they treated the tactical ferry program with interest, but nothing remarkable from the daily schedule. They were well aware of the foundation of the program between the wings to include the close ties between the 5th Munitions Squadron and the 2d Munitions Squadron to build a meticulous flow plan for transferring Air Launched and Advanced Cruise Missiles. The mechanics of the program were sound.
- (U) Barksdale AFB's 2nd Bomb Wing (2 BW) has a strong maintenance "warning system." Their maintenance complex would have readily caught the same scheduling error. Conversely, their air crews were not properly prepared to fly this very important mission. They are competent to fly pylon loads of munitions, but their nuclear experience is lacking. The supervision and leadership in the Operations Group had developed a tactical ferry program which was lacking or lackluster. This was evident in the minimum crew composition they assigned to fly the mission.
- (U) The reality is the 2 BW has a very strong maintenance-scheduling process. The 2nd Maintenance Group Commander assures that it is a model for planning, scheduling and accomplishing the full line of aircraft and munitions maintenance actions. (Tab G13) Line workers, supervisors and leaders use a common schedule by which they accomplish their weekly activities. In all, they have well-trained, disciplined maintainers from the supervisors to the top leader. They have a focus of purpose using a common scheduling process. On balance, they would have easily caught a scheduling error. Their warning system is intact. However, beyond the leadership, supervision and scheduling discipline there is atrophy in their ability to generate bombers to nuclear capability.

(U) However, on the operations group side, they have fundamentally changed the calculus to conventional weaponry at all levels of leadership to the core training focus. They are prepared to generate, but they will rely on key personnel to carry them through a war-preparation exercise or rely on existing, precisely written checklists. To emphasize, the nuclear skill sets have not been exercised. They are atrophied. It was evident in the testimony of every operations group member we interviewed. When referring to the tactical ferry program they believe it is a, "Depot Maintenance input that only requires three (3) crewmembers...we're only ferrying 'carcasses' from point A to point B!" That is a quote. They have treated the program in the generalist sense.

- (U) Very few admit they saw the COMACC-directed Repositioning Order (REPORD) that came through formal message traffic. (Tab G17, p. 1-4) Rather, the tactical-ferry program preparation was given to a check pilot. The 6000 report built a three-ring binder of guidance with a pilot's eye on safety of flight. The book was never coordinated within the wing nor fully vetted with operations squadron, group or wing leadership. In fact, some guidance in the book, which was primarily written for aircraft commander consumption, was unattainable. The book was resident in the standardization, evaluation office. From what we can ascertain, the crews did review the flight parameters with their deputy group or group commander the day prior to the sortie...that was a well followed provision. However, that's not because it was directive in nature. It was understood the leadership wanted oversight of each crew's readiness for this mission. There was no formal presentation, just make contact.
- (U) We asked for a simulator with a Formal Training Unit instructor cadre to review nuclear checklist procedures and "switchology" to fully understand basic nuclear, tactical-ferry and emergency (weapon, pylon) jettison procedures. The "school house" instructors did a magnificent job. They also revealed the initial B-52 training course they teach has, over time, reduced the nuclear syllabus in lieu of accomplishing conventional preparation. For example, the one academic block of instruction for nuclear operations is planned for 3-hours. It is not taught in a classroom; rather, it is a computer-based course. Also, the one flight devoted to nuclear procedures has devolved to a simulator 'ride'. There is a catch. They believe nuclear training is really taught after a B-52 crew graduates from the school house. It is in the formal school house which some of the discipline of performing a full preflight of every weapon is lost upon the crews. It has carried over into the squadrons where actual testimony of pilots and navigators reveals that some implicitly believe the checklist calls for "spot checking" or partially checking or fully checking the weapons. To many, "It depends." The assumption is the navigators are taught up front to accomplish a thorough preflight, weapon by weapon. Not true. The pervasive assumption has trickled into their nuclear training. Leadership failed to identify this issue of "spot checking" weapons as a problem that needed a solution.
- (U) During the mission qualification phase in the bomber squadron, the crew is scheduled for indepth nuclear academics in the wing's nuclear "vault". The "vault" is a secure war-planning section in the wing's operational support squadron. It is here the crew is taught or exposed to basic nuclear weapons design, how to decode documents and generate a nuclear bomber to meet STRATCOM's war plans. This training takes about two weeks. It is assumed in this phase the crews have been taught in general, in the school house, how to preflight weapons. The vault personnel do take the crews out to the weapons-load trainer to see nuclear-training munitions. They generally do not touch the real thing, just mock training missiles. This is where the crews have lost some of the ability to properly preflight a missile. This is also where the streams of assumption have crossed. Final testimonial note...the Barksdale AFB aircrew that flew the Advanced Cruise Missiles from Minot AFB have never physically touched a real missile...their fingers have never put an imprint on an actual advanced or air launched missile...neither the experienced instructor pilot, radar navigator or inexperienced copilot.

- (U) The resultant has been a further erosion of the nuclear skill sets at this base particularly. Barksdale holds the keys to every aspect of B-52 training. It is evident in the "school house" where B-52 crews learn the fundamentals to the ultimate weapons school where the PhD's of the B-52 are taught to be experts in both conventional and (supposedly) nuclear weapons, tactics and procedures. The nuclear academia has eroded. They are conventional only. The B-52 Weapons Instructor Course does not teach its premier "weaponeers" the fundamentals of their nuclear trade craft. In testimony, we asked every single Weapon School graduate from colonel to captain about their training at Barksdale and Nellis AFB...the older graduates distinctly remember training on nuclear weapons, no differently than conventional weapons. The most recent Distinguished Graduate from weapon school, the instructor pilot on 'Doom 99' which transported the nuclear warheads aboard her B-52, did not receive specific nuclear weapons instruction in Class 07-A. Again, she admitted she had never physically touched a nuclear weapon. There are deeply rooted changes in training which have evolved over the years. The Air Force and Air Combat Command will need to further study the training syllabi in a more comprehensive study. The calculus has changed; the contrast is evident.
- (U) There is a contrast between the two B-52 wings.
- (U) Barksdale AFB 2 BW's scheduling processes are very sharp, especially in the maintenance complex. The Operations and Maintenance Group leadership regularly meets to 'level the bubbles' and untie any Gordian Knots. It's commendable. Combined, the maintenance leadership, scheduling processes and wing commander oversight would have invariably caught the scheduling anomalies that caused this incident to occur at Minot. The operations leadership never caught the two unqualified, non-combat mission ready for nuclear (CMR-N) crew members. In fact, they had disregarded the requirement in the REPORD to be basic-mission or combat-mission ready in nuclear procedures to conduct tactical ferry operations. This is true even though That admits that he did read the message and had expressed his concern that (b)(6) ACC the CMR-N requirement was too restrictive. He had been the (b)(b) ACC at which time he had stepped in as the (b)(6) ACC pending the (b)(6) ACC After expressing his concern about the CMR-N requirement to arrival of the □ his staff, he failed to ensure compliance with the REPORD or to forward his concern to ACC.
- (U) The IP on Doom 99 was not CMR-N; a requirement for this mission. (Tab F19, p. 2; Tab G17, p. 3) We have found another 2 BW aircrew member flew without nuclear qualification. To repeat, the operational chain of command never read or followed the COMACC REPORD message nor was aware of the guidance in the tactical ferry book. The thin margin of nuclear emphasis on the 2 BW operational side would not and did not, in our view, give rise to any ability to catch a mistake at the aircraft in the tactical ferry program...that's why the Barksdale crew missed the nuclear-loaded pylon.
- (U) The 2 BW has unwittingly abrogated its nuclear imperative. Except for two senior O-6 leaders, the wing by in large is incapable of performing the nuclear mission it is assigned. Future inspections will have to bear that out. The second-order effect is worse. Because the wing is responsible for the entire training spectrum, this de-emphasis is now permeated within at least the younger, emerging B-52 crew force.

- (U) The chain reaction which started at Minot actually started at Barksdale; if anything, it ended with a Barksdale B-52 crew. More than ever, the complete picture shows there was a breakdown in discipline, supervision and leadership. The fourth ingredient that has eroded is training.
- (U) In sum, two fault waves occurred and caused this "perfect storm." There was no visible warning of this coming. It occurred at the wing level and below.

We have thoroughly investigated upwards the entire chain of command from the Air Force-level direction to Air Combat Command Commander's order to reposition the missiles to the 8th Air Force Commander responsible in his capacity as Task Force 204 Commander. TF 204 is STRATCOM's assigned nuclear bomber and reconnaissance task force. The 5th Bomb Wing's maintenance personnel and 2nd Bomb Wing's aircrew who facilitated the unauthorized transfer of nuclear warheads from Minot AFB to Barksdale AFB are clearly at fault and should be held accountable by their commanders.

Tab E: Recommendations

DoD

(U) I have one overarching recommendation. The Air Force should request a comprehensive inter-agency study of nuclear standards outlined in top level, current guidance (DTRA, DOE, OSD, STRATCOM) and compare those standards to the respective force provider's standards (USAF, USN). Though there was a clear failure to secure and prevent an unauthorized transfer of nuclear warheads, it would be mutually beneficial for others to assist us in reviewing any seams in the nuclear standards.

Air Force

- Cruise Missile and Advanced Cruise Missile reposturing program; unless movements are directed by the CDR USTRATCOM for operational requirements and further approved by SECDEF.
 - (U) Initiate a thorough review of tactical ferry options to assure each respective MAJCOM (i.e., ACC, AFSPC, AMC, USAFE, etc.) adheres to one rigid standard of training and execution similar to the Primary Nuclear Airlift Program (PNAF).

(b)(1) ACC

- (U) Direct all nuclear units to separate nuclear from nuclear-training, nuclear-testing and nuclear-inert payloads. If able, put them in separate shelters. Separate shelters would diminish the same human error that caused this incident. If unable to separately shelter, then establish clear guidance to mark, delineate and separate the dissimilar payloads. Regardless, treat all shelters with the same nuclear surety, safety and reliability procedures. Leave nothing to chance. Maintain the same nuclear shelter protection of sealing doors and completely blocking the doors from floor to ceiling with Massive Modular Blocks; per existing procedures.
 - (U) AFI 91-101, Air Force Nuclear Weapons Surety Program, does not permit the storage of conventional and nuclear ordnance in the same shelter. That's why Conventional Air Launched Cruise Missiles (CALCM) can not be sheltered with ALCMs.
 - (U) There is no CJCS guidance that we are aware of that addresses the storage of nuclear weapons. CJCSI 3150.04, Nuclear Weapons Stockpile Logistics Management and

UNCLASSIFIED

Nuclear Weapons Reports Under the Joint Reporting Structure, is not restrictive regarding how services store nuclear or nuclear-inert munitions.

- (U) The Air Force permits mixed storage on nuclear and nuclear-inert weapons. This was even done in Strategic Air Command days. SAC regularly mixed loads in storage in preparation for testing, training and tactical ferry missions. Previously, SAC regulations and now AFI 21-204 does permit mixed storage as long as the unit "delineates" the separate loads.
- (U) Change AFI 21-204, Nuclear Weapons Maintenance Procedures, which guide our units on the procedures for labeling or delineating nuclear-inert loads; in this case, tactical ferry packages. The instruction directs in paragraph 4.1.2 to, "Identify non-operational weapons (i.e., placard or rope-off) to prevent inadvertent use...make identification readily visible and do not remove until status is changed..." The procedures identifying (i.e., 'placarding') a nuclear-inert load should be the same. Likewise, change AFI 91-111, Safety Rules for US Strategic Bomber Aircraft. Chapter 6 on "Nuclear Identification" is equally vague. It directs units to, "Develop procedures to...distinguish nuclear bombs from test or training shapes...identify containers that contain nuclear warheads."
 - (U) It was readily apparent that the wing's interpretation led to a simple set of 8 ½ X 11 inch pieces of paper taped on the side of the pylon. The paper signs indicated "TAC FERRY PACKAGE" or "TAC FERRY LOAD."
 - (U) They were never consistent as to placement on the pylon, the number of paper placards or procedures for who should and should not remove them prior to flight. In essence, there wasn't a "REMOVE BEFORE FLIGHT" red streamer or well designed placard that showed this to be a tactical-ferry prepared load.
 - (U) Adopt a single placard that "shouts" to all personnel...and, not easily removed without a work order.

(b)(1) ACC

- (U) Perhaps, an automated tracking system for the future might be beneficial. If for anything, it can act as a real-time GPS tracking tool for leadership at all levels.
- (U) Review, then change our manuals and checklists to precisely tell each crew how to verify every item on the "Bill of Lading" and confirm that the "Bill of Lading" matches the load.

- (U) Regardless, from "boom" to ballast payloads, the nuclear handling procedures should be the same for training testing and actual operations.
- (U) Treat everything nuclear with the same nuclear surety, safety and reliability. In short, train the way we fight.
- (U) Consider re-implementing a no-notice Nuclear Surety Inspection regime that triumphs the Air Force's focus on 24/7/365 nuclear preparedness posture. This is a tough measure in our current environment.
 - (U) Therefore, review the scope, scale and duration of Nuclear Surety Inspections and Nuclear Operational Readiness Inspections.
 - (U) Most units adequately prepare and stand poised when the NSI or NORI team arrives. They have trained the "A Team" to meet the inspectors and the "B Team" to be in the shadows when possible. All nuclear qualified and certified personnel from the youngest Airman to the Wing Commander ought to be subject to a no-notice inspection.

Command and Control Procedures

- (U) Initiate a review of Air Force guidance on installation-level nuclear command and control procedures from scheduling monthly, weekly to daily maintenance (and operations) requirements to the actual oversight for accomplishing those requirements. So far, the Air Force and DoD instructions governing command and control of nuclear weapons appear to properly guide the unit. However, we found both Minot and Barksdale AFBs adopted their own techniques and in some cases, procedures for executing the instructions. The Air Force does not have a standard command and control procedure for nuclear operations within the Weapon Storage Areas.
 - (U) Specify control procedures for Nuclear Munitions scheduling in AFI 21-204. Detail how the squadron munitions schedule will be developed and approved.
 - (U) Specify a rigid process for changing the schedule, make it similar to the change process used for the wing flying schedule (AFI 21-165) and require the munitions squadron commander and the maintenance group commander to approve changes.
 - (U) Use one document, to create and manage the maintenance schedule. The schedule should include every maintenance task and JCN on the spreadsheet (use different tabs for schedule, spare missiles, training, etc.).
 - (U) Establish security controls in the scheduling process to limit those with authority to make changes. This preserves the integrity of the information and ensures Missile Analysis Section is the focal point of information within the Special Weapons Maintenance Flight.

UNCLASSIFIED

- (U) Require the nuclear munitions maintenance schedule be part of the wing maintenance and operations plan and to be briefed to the wing commander in the same detail as the flying schedule.
- (U) Track Munitions scheduling deviations and brief them to the squadron commander and group commander weekly.
- (U) Specify the minimum requirements for daily munitions production meetings. Show work scheduled, work complete, and any production delays. Develop minimum requirements for daily munitions updates and detail minimum items that must be reviewed daily by the Munitions Operations Officer and Munitions Squadron Superintendent.
- (U) Require a "Geiger-counter" or similar radiation-detection checks on any missile being transported out of the Weapons Storage Area.

Leadership Training

- (U) Our future senior wing leaders are less inclined to have nuclear experience. They need help. From the squadron to wing commanders, there is a contrived view of how nuclear operations need to be executed. In some cases, wing leadership disregarded the importance of conducting regularly scheduled nuclear exercises and other preparation for their nuclear commitments. I propose for consideration a way of re-capturing the mission focus starting with the leadership.
- (U) I recommend that commanders at all levels attend a joint-oriented, nuclear-certified course for those in the direct chain of nuclear weapons operations; regardless of whether they are directly or indirectly responsible for an operational nuclear stockpile. Unlike Admiral Hyman Rickover's nuclear submarine force, where "boomers" had the legend of technical prowess, the Air Force needs to simply ingrain the fundamentals in our force, their leaders and their training.
- (U) Leaders need mentors. Therefore, I would recommend the establishment of a senior-mentor program that provides direct training to those put in the position of responsibility of our nuclear operations....fighter, bomber, ICBM and space. These "grey-beards" should be a part of the joint nuclear training course.
 - (U) Recommend that the Air Force establish a short, poignant course at Maxwell AFB Air University for a commander that addresses the doctrinal, procedural and operational arts of all things nuclear.
 - (U) Use the existing Air Force Senior Mentors to teach our nuclear-certified leaders.

Commander's Custody of Nuclear Weapons

(U) Senior leadership ownership of nuclear weapons is not "inherent." We should make ownership a part of command for the Munitions Squadron Commander and the Wing Commander.

•	(U) Nuclear stockp	olles are owned by the lieutenants. I don't inte	end that to be a flippant remark, it's a fact.	(b)(6) ACC
		(b)(6) ACC

- (U) I sat with him to carefully audit his signed appointment letter, inventory and actual written "contract." Additionally, I reviewed his past six-month's stockpile verifications to include the 'quarantined' hard drives from the Defense Integration and Management of Nuclear Data Services (DIAMONDS) computer program that he keeps to prove the voracity of the verification process.
- (U) The MASO indicated that he is the only one who is held to account for the nuclear warheads. Commanders are not.
- (U) Give the Munitions Squadron Commander and the Wing Commander ownership of the unit's nuclear stockpile; the same way a young officer accepts his duties as a MASO. It will change the calculus if both commanders in the direct command of the nuclear weapons have to accept 'custody' of their ordnance. This has never been done in the Air Force.
 - (U) The MASO was trained at Sheppard AFB. According to his testimony, he did not get trained on an actual DIAMONDS computer system; perhaps, a classification issue. Regardless, the two respective commanders ought to receive some training on how to accept custody of the nuclear munitions.
 - (U) The nuclear course for commanders should include a block of instruction on nuclear weapons accountability and custody.
 - (U) Similar to the way the command echelon certifies a new commander for PRP prior to the change of command; I recommend the chain of command also have a formal nuclear weapons munitions and mission handover prior to taking the flag of command responsibility.
 - (U) In short, formally document and dissolve the outgoing commander's custody and inaugurate the new commander's custody. The MASO should be held accountable to both commanders for all changes to their aligned "contract." This will force inherent ownership and custody of the nuclear stockpile at all echelons of command.

Air Expeditionary Force Alignment

- (U) Assign nuclear units to AEF duty. This is a difficult issue, but one for consideration. If there is a nuclear focus problem, then it may be worthwhile to formally assign a unit to an AEF vulnerability period. That would be the unit's specified task during the AEF cycle. The implied task is the unit will have a full 120-day workup to full combat capability prior to assuming the AEF duty for STRATCOM. When the unit completes its in-garrison assigned cycle, it can easily prepare for other AEF requirements.
 - (U) The AEF construct better fits a dual-DOC bomber wing's scheduling.
 - (U) Consolidating a wing's commitments on a planning order will also give the commanders little latitude but to prepare for the nuclear mission set. It may come with a cost for limiting a unit's availability for conventional operations, COCOM Theater Support Plans and other potential engagements. However, this will put rigor in the system. It will give the wing some flexibility to prepare for other requirements.

Additional Air Force-Level Recommendations

- (U) Requisition a Defense Integration and Management of Nuclear Data Services (DIAMONDS) terminal for the Nuclear Munitions Officer Course in AETC. Expand training on the duties of the Munitions Accounting Systems Officer (MASO).
- (U) Change the appointing official for the MASO to be the installation commander. Require the MASO to be certified by the wing commander prior to assuming his duties. Change AFI 21-204 to require MASO to brief the Wing Commander when they assume command and the results of each inventory.
- (U) Change the weapons loading technical orders and checklists that will require the load crew to accomplish a Missile Safe Status Check prior to commencing a load and after completing the missile system checkout.
- (U) Reassign the maintenance scheduler back into the nuclear munitions squadron. The Plans and Scheduling personnel in the Maintenance Operations Squadron appear to be disconnected from the detailed scheduling requirements for nuclear operations. This will assure continuity of effort and planning.
- (U) Establish one software system for munitions control and standardize it across the Air Force. Wings use various software programs similar to the MUNSCON software used at Minot.
- (U) Require mandatory Quality Assurance evaluations for munitions controllers. The periodic evaluation should be an over-the-shoulder observation of the controller's duty in the course of their daily activities and responsibilities.

UNCLASSIFIED

- (U) Emphasize munitions scheduling processes as a focus item of an NSI. Review schedule development and production as well as change tracking and scheduling effectiveness.
- (U) Standardized the duties of munitions controllers. Develop a MAJCOM standard training and certification plan for Munitions Control Center controllers.
- (U) Submit AF Form 847 to change T.O. 1B-52H-30-4, Aircrew Weapon Delivery Manual, pg 2-4, 2nd paragraph under TACTICAL FERRY to read: "...accomplish all normal procedures from Before Exterior Inspection through step 1b of After Engine Start and all Prelanding Procedures and After Landing Procedures."
- (U) Submit AF Form 847 to ACCI 10-450V2, para 3.5.3., modifying 2nd to last sentence to read: "Requirements include...command and control procedures, EWO communications training, actual weapons preflight, tactics,"

Preflight

- (U) Submit AF Form 847 adding the following NOTE after existing NOTE on pg 2-8 to T.O. 1B-52H-30-1 reading: "Regardless of missile payload, two weapons qualified personnel must preflight all missiles prior to aircraft acceptance and annotate completion of missile preflight to include payload type verification and status in AFTO 781."
- (U) Task Air Combat Command to re-evaluate B-52 nuclear training requirements and currencies. Delineate which organization is responsible for nuclear training requirements (FTU vs. gaining unit).

Minot AFB

- (U) Incorporate the Special Weapons Handling Section's schedule requirements into the Special Weapons Maintenance Flight overall scheduling process. Currently, the weapons handlers do their own job control numbers based on the flight's schedule. They should be driven by and integral to the flight's scheduling process.
- (U) Develop minimum training for munitions controllers and specify their duties in detail. Formally certify munitions controllers for their duties.
- (U) Re-train all Munitions Control personnel on their responsibilities to track, control, identify and verify the status of nuclear and nuclear-inert assets.
- (U) Completely revise the Munitions Squadron morning status briefing. Show work scheduled, work complete, and any production delays. Ensure that these items are reviewed daily by the Munitions Operations Officer and Munitions Squadron Superintendent.

- (U) Decertify and train all Special Weapons Handling personnel on all their duties relative to weapons transport. Retrain, qualify and certify each individual.
- (U) Retrain all Munitions Control Center personnel to promptly update and document firefighting line numbers following any change in status or location of nuclear munitions.
- (U) Immediately develop a process to coordinate all schedule changes through all sections in the Munitions Squadron.
- (U) Immediately ensure section supervisors bring schedules to the section production meetings and eliminate the use of note books as the vehicle for controlling work.
- (U) Ensure the production superintendent uses the schedule as his basis for tracking and controlling maintenance.
- (U) Limit those with authority to make changes to any munitions, maintenance or flight schedule. The wing should adhere to Air Force procedures for schedule changes.
- (U) Include payload-identification training in munitions training lesson plans. Ensure all munitions personnel are trained.

Barksdale AFB

- (U) Review B-52 FTU syllabus to ensure nuclear mission training is accomplished.
- (U) Review B-52 Weapons School course syllabus to ensure adequate instruction is provided to Weapons School students preparing them to be nuclear weapons subject matter experts.
- (U) Barksdale leadership must make every attempt to develop robust nuclear mission exercise scenarios and ensure at least two nuclear exercises per year in accordance with ACCI 10-450 Vol 5 Strategic Committeed Aircraft Exercises.
- (U) Develop a weapons preflight training program to ensure Tech Order procedures and applicable instructions are understood, standardized, practiced, and certified. Special emphasis must be placed on nuclear munitions.

Personnel Reliability Program

Personal Reliability Program (PRP)

Source: DOD 5210.42-R AFMAN 10-3902

NUCLEAR WEAPONS PERSONNEL RELIABILITY PROGRAM (PRP)

(U) The Personnel Reliability Program exists because... "Nuclear weapons require special consideration because of their policy implications and military importance, their destructive power, and the political consequences of an accident, loss of a weapon, or an unauthorized act. The safety, security, control, and effectiveness of nuclear weapons are of paramount importance to the security of the United States."

- (U) PRP intent is ... "to select and maintain only the most reliable people to perform duties associated with nuclear weapons." PRP is not intended to act as a quality control tool to decertify/disqualify individuals solely for assignment purposes or risk avoidance. Denial of eligibility or the revocation of certification for assignment to PRP positions is neither a punitive measure nor the basis for disciplinary action. Failure of an individual to be certified for assignment to PRP duties does not necessarily reflect unfavorably on the individual's suitability for assignment to other duties.
- (U) DL.18. Decertification: An action based on the receipt of adverse information leading to removal from the PRP of an individual who has been screened, determined reliable, and certified capable of performing duties involving nuclear weapons. There are two types:
- (U) DL.18.1. Temporary Decertification: An action taken when the certifying official has information that could be expected to affect an individual's job performance or reliability and suspension is not appropriate.
- (U) DL.18.2. Permanent Decertification: An action taken when the certifying official has determined an individual no longer meets the reliability standards specified in this Regulation. When the permanent decertification is approved by the reviewing official, the individual will be removed (Added) (AF) (unless reinstated as defined by procedures in this Regulation and Supplement) from positions requiring PRP certification and the action shall be made a matter of permanent record.
- (U) Specifically in making the following PRP recommendations the following guidance was considered:
- (U) C5.1.4. Negligence or Delinquency in Performance of Duty. If the certifying official's review of the PRP candidate's or certified member's job or duty history reveals a lack of dependability, flexibility, good attitude or good judgment, the member should not be certified, or should be decertified. In determining reliability, the certifying official must evaluate all aspects of an individual's actions.
- (U) C5.1.7. Poor Attitude or Lack of Motivation. Poor attitude or lack of motivation as evidenced by aberrant attitude or irrational behavior, inappropriate behavior or mood may be grounds for decertification.
- (U) C5.1.9. Loss of Confidence. If for any reason the certifying official loses trust or confidence in a member's ability to perform PRP duties, the certifying official shall decertify the member.
- (U) Over 90 individuals from the 2nd and 5th Bomb Wings were suspended from PRP duties until their roles in the incident could be determined. During the course of the CDI it became evident that many individuals should be considered for permanent, or at least temporary, PRP decertification while many others can be returned to full PRP duty status.

Permanent Decertification

Based on the findings of this CDI the following are recommended to be PRP Permanently Decertified:

-MASKED-

Masked information consisted of personnel names; therefore, would have been exempt under exemption (b)(6) Temporary Decertification

Based on the findings of this CDI the following are recommended to be PRP Temporarily Decertified:

-MASKED- Masked information consisted of personnel names; therefore, would have been exempt under exemption (b)(6)

Immediate Reinstatement

Based on the findings of this CDI the following are recommended to be reinstated in PRP:

-MASKED- Masked information consisted of personnel names; therefore, would have been exempt under exemption (b)(6)

Recommendations for Consideration of Disciplinary Action

(U) During the investigation, it was apparent the unauthorized transfer of nuclear weapons would not have occurred if those involved had performed their assigned duties. During August 2007, several military members failed to live up to the standards expected of Airmen. Degree of culpability among this list of Airmen obviously will vary. The purpose of this paragraph is not to list everyone who failed. The table below lists those whose culpability ostensibly rises to the level of a violation of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. These individuals are suspected of dereliction of duty for their failure to follow standard procedures and should be considered for some type of disciplinary action.

- MASKED- Masked information consisted of personnel names; therefore, would have been exempt under exemption (b)(6)

- (U) Commanders at all levels can direct removal of personnel directly under their chain of command when the Commander has lost confidence of their subordinate commanders/supervisors. Some of these actions may have already occurred but it is the recommendation of this CDI to remove the following individuals from Command/Supervisory Positions:
- MASKED Masked information consisted of personnel names; therefore, would have been exempt under exemption (b)(6)

Removal from Instructor/Evaluator Orders

- MASKED - Masked information consisted of personnel names; therefore, would have been exempt under exemption (b)(6)

Actions Required for Selected Missile Capabilities Talking Paper (TO 1B-52H-30-1)

- (U) The following narrative explains what aircrew actions are required to carry out certain missile capabilities onboard the B-52, to include missile communication, jettison (both required by the Tac Ferry Program), payload identification, pre-arming, and launching.
- (U) During Tac-Ferry missions the missiles do not have power applied and are in an OFF/SAFE or dormant state. The crew had limited options available to "communicate" with the missiles. They could jettison a single missile from the pylons, all missiles from the pylons, or jettison the entire pylon with all missiles attached. The crew did not have the option to pre-arm the ACM and therefore could not launch the missile at any time.

(U) In order for an aircrew to establish missile communication with the B-52, the following		owing actions must occur.	(b)(1) mosaic ACC

mission accomplished all of these steps.

(U) After the computer is powered and loaded, the RN must turn on the Missile Interface Unit (MIU) on each pylon in order to enable direct communication, assignment and monitoring for all the missiles. One MIU is associated with each missile-loaded pylon and it acts like a computer router that enables the primary OAS computer to talk to the circuitry of each missile. It sends continuous missile/warhead status updates from each missile back to the OAS.

MEMORANDUM FOR INSPECTOR GENERAL OF THE AIR FORCE STAFF JUDGE ADVOCATE, AIR COMBAT COMMAND INSPECTOR GENERAL, MINOT AIR FORCE BASE

SUBJECT: Oversight of Air Force Investigation into Circumstances Surrounding the Inadvertent Shipment of Six Nuclear Warheads by B-52 from Minot Air Force Base to Barksdale Air Force Base in August 2007

As discussed with representatives of your offices, we will provide on-scene oversight to the investigation, directed by the Commander, Air Combat Command, into circumstances surrounding the inadvertent transport of nuclear warheads on a B-52 from Minot Air Force Base (AFB) to Barksdale AFB during last week of August 2007.

The request for independent review of the matter was made by letter dated September 5, 2007, to the Secretary of Defense from the Chairman, Senate Armed Services Committee. At the same time, the Secretary of the Air Force asked the DoD Inspector General (IG) to oversight investigative and inspection activities initiated by the Air Force in response to the incident and to follow-up on recommendations generated by those activities.

We have established a two-person team to provide independent oversight to the Air Force commander-directed investigation. The team will travel to Barksdale AFB on September 18, 2007, where it will meet with the Air Force Investigating Officer to review the scope and current progress of the Air Force investigation. From there, the team will travel to Minot AFB on September 20 for additional on-scene review. The objective of DoD IG involvement is to ensure that the Air Force investigation thoroughly establishes the facts regarding the incident, identifies the root cause of the incident, and reasonably assigns accountability.

We will coordinate our activities with your offices and request that you advise Air Force officials of our role in this matter as you deem appropriate.

Should you have any questions, please to the time of (b)(6) ACC at (703) 604-

IV. STATEMENT	ONOLAGOITILD
My name is (b)(6) ACC My job	title is 2W231. I used to work directly in the High Bay in the IMF as a team ry 5, 2007. At this point, I was removed from the bay and placed in the Analysis section of the IMF. My duty in the Analysis section	on was to close out the work orders scheduled for the hay based on the inputs I received from (b)(6) ACC at the	end of the week. I would also make sure that the information in IMDS would match the build-up sheets the High Bay created (t	he missiles, ejector racks, and impulse cartridges were installed correctly).
I believe it was around late February to the m	iddle of March when I would start attending the Scheduling Meeting every Wednesday. This meeting is where each shop wou	ald meet with Plans and Scheduling (P & S) to make sure their schedule was correct with our schedule. We would make necess	sary changes at this time. Sometimes, we would make changes after the meeting.
The slide show that P & S would show is a docum	ent that I would never edit. Analysis, along with other shops, would access an Excel document that we would put our weekly ma meeting held on Wednesday of every week. If I di	dn' (b)(6) ACC I would attend for him. I'm not really sure who would attend meetings when I was unava	ilable. I was able to attend the meeting on August 15, 2007 which was to talk about the maintenance for the following week. I d	on't recollect what was said about GZ203 and GZ377 between (b)(6) ACC

(b) AC Cor do I recollect what was said between (b)	6) ACC and I.
According to the P & S document, GZ203 and	d GZ377 were scheduled for UPLOAD PACKAGE. It was never put on our Excel document that we look at for our weekly maintena	nce. These packages should have read TAC FERRY PREP. AF (b)(3)
	AF (b)(3)
Someone else in Analysis would put the packages	for the week onto the Excel document before we would attend the meeting for the week. If they weren't on the document after th	e meeting, I would make the necessary changes to the document if someone else hadn't already done so.
(b)(6) ACC would come to me and tell me if t	here were changes to the schedule after I would attend the meeting (if the High

(pylon or launcher number) and print out the scree	n showing what work orders each piece of equipment had against it. Then, I would print out each individual work order and have then	n ready for the High Bay to take to the bay for the maintenance coming in that coming week. I would call the bay on Mondays an	d they would come get those work orders. At least twice a day, I would call out to the bay and ask (b)(6) ACC what all had been comp	lied with for the week's maintenance. She would tell me and I would take the JCN for each work order and close it out. Once the JCI	I was closed out, I would cross it off of my Equipment ID print out so that I knew uld go back and make sure that the week's maintenance was showing complied and not the slide show that P & S had created. I'm not sure if there was a miscommunication	between (b)(6) ACC and I for this to become UPLOAD PACKAGE instead and GZ377 weren't put onto our Excel document. If so, work orders would have

case, then I would have deleted them off of the Ex	ter document and told 1 & 3 to delete the work orders against them.

When we would close out work orders in IMDS, we would not always use the person who did the actual maintenance. Not everyone in the bay has an IMDS user ID. We were currently trying to get everyone a user ID. As long as we didn't cross time frames when using someone's user ID, it was okay to use their ID for any numerous amount of work orders. For example, if the work order said it was complied with (corrected by or inspected by) HICEJA, that doesn't necessarily mean that she is the one that did the work. This was also true of the other IMDS user IDs that we were able to use.

IV. STATEMENT
I am the (b)(6) ACC of 2 OG/OGV. I have been in this position for approximately one year. During formulation of the Tae Perry process I was the (b)(6) ACC of OGV.
Perry process I was me to do v.
I am responsible for the tactical ferry binder used by Barksdaie Aircrews during factical ferry missions. I received guidance from the 2 OG (b)(6) ACC in March of 2007 to build the binder to aid aircrew in mission planning. It also received guidance to develop a process to ensure aircrew accomplished centain tasks during mission planning and sortic execution that were above and beyond the normal procedures. The binder was not meant to serve as an official checklist or technical order, but was meant to provide the aircraft commander with information that would not normally be covered on a typical sortic. There was a slide presentation in the binder that was developed at Minot, but all other materials were developed/gathered by OGV. The factical ferry binder focused on issues facing the pilot team during the factical ferry missions. The binder did have inputs from several radar navigators in the notes section. I was not aware of the ACC Re-positioning Order, requirements for CMR/BMC crewmembers, or of a separate ORM process for these sorties prior to the event.
A crew complement of three (minimum of an instructor Pilot, an experienced Radar Navigator, and copilot) was chosen because the jertison scenario and landing considerations were deemed the highest threats and could be accomplished with the crew of three listed above. Because there was no weapons training or employment during the sorties, it was deemed that a navigator was not necessary. Neither the 30-1 not the 30-4 was referenced during the process. On review of the checklists, I agree that both the Radar Navigator and the Navigator should be present for weapons preflight checklist to be accomplished. Aircraft commanders are ultimately responsible for everything that happens on their jet, but the mission dictates that certain duties ne delineated to other crew members. As an aircraft commander, I trust that all other crew members accomplish their individual checklists as required, but the prudent aircraft commander will check the general condition of the entire aircraft. Aircraft commanders do not generally accomplish a thorough weapons preflight; therefore, they rely on a status report from the radar navigator. I was unaware of spot checking during weapon preflights prior to the event, but did hear discussions after the event comparing Minot and Barksdale weapons on preflight procedures, but cannot remember the exact details of those discussions.
(b)(6) ACC has earned his Stan Eval SELO position and continues to display why he earned it—he is top notch. I have had limited interaction (b)(6) ACC in the last 4 years, but from her experience level, I have no reason to doubt her ability to successfully perform the factical ferry mission. I do not recall a conversation about (b)(6) ACC qualifications prior to the event, but cannot rule out having a conversation 100%; however, after the event, I do recall learning that her qualification was an issue and would not have thought about that had it been brought up before. I have been (b)(6) ACC supervisor in the past. She is intelligent, but has inter-personal issues that affect her officership; however, she is capable of running applicable checklists
I was surprised to find out this event happened. I spent a great deal of time coming up with a solid plan to handle any issues that might arise and never considered this scenario

IV. STATEMENT
I arrived at work around 0615 on the morning of	29 Aug 07, (b)(6) ACC was already there. (b)(6) ACC was working on the maintenance tasking for the day I went to (b)(6)	ACC office to verify the workload for the day I looked on the marker board and saw that we had 2 TAC Ferry pylons to move and	18 H1388 shipping containers plus 1 pylon to move from the IMF to storag(b) (6) A
(b (6) ACOd myself found the storage locations of th	e TAC Ferry pylons on the magnetic board on the wal (b)(6) ACC finished typing
the task listing for the day and verified it for local	tion and serial number accuracy. Around 0700 (b)(6) ACC and the airmen completed the general safety brief for the day (b)	(6) ACC briefed the respective assignments to the airmen. Once the briefing was

(b)(6) ACC to arrive at 185	57A. Once they arrived and we had SF personnel on scene (b)(6) ACC posted as the
MCIS, (b)(6) ACC went through t	he structure opening procedures. Once the door opened, we as a group complied with the steps on the opening/closing checklist as	s well as the SVA checklist. Once we completed our checks, (b)(6) ACC performed pre-tow procedures and then connecte	d his tow vehicle to the pylon, once connected he pulled the pylon forward to clear the door so that we could close and move or	n to the next structure. We completed the closing procedures at 1857 and then proceeded to 1854A. (b)(6) ACC	went through the opening process and got the door open. I as the SVA had checks I had to perform inside the structure and asked (b)(6	3) ACC to keep an eye on me. As I entered the structure with (b)(6) ACC I kicked an orange cone used to mark off GZ203, I don't reca	Il seeing any other cones around GZ203 or any placards on it either. I to(b)(6) ACC flashlight on Position 1, 3, 5 and 9 of 1854. I did status check on GZ203 so I asked (b)(6) ACC if GZ	203 was good to go. He responded that it was. I told him to move it out of the way so that (b)(6) ACC could transpo	ort another pylon from the IMF to 1854. He pulled the pylon out of the way and I told him to go ahead and wait at the ALCM gate. I	He did so and (b)(6) ACC pulled in behind him with his pylon. Once (b)(6) ACC and (b)(6) ACC arrived at 1854 we completed th	e closing procedures. At that point (b)(6) ACC

went to 1842W and repeated the opening process
(b)(6) ACC then transported 18 H1388	s from Bldg 1134 to 1842W. Once they completed the can moves (b)(6) ACC and
(b)(6) ACC closed 1842W. They along with (b)(6	ACC returned to Bldg 1134 to turn in keys, shotguns, and the SVA kit. I returned the vehicle I was driving to Bldg 1122 and then le	ft the WSA and went back to Bldg 1142. Once everyone returned from the WSA
we completed the end of day checklist and left for	home. We returned to work on the following day and I did an end of week cleanup in the building and prepped PLAs for the	scheduled inbound TAC Ferry pylons. We left work at around 1500 with the expectation of having a long weekend. I was just d	ozing off to sleep around 2300 when my phone rang. I answered it and was told by as I could. I asked him if I needed to be in uniform and he said yes and that I also needed to call the airmen under me on the recall re work I then tried to contact (b)(6) ACC and got his	voice mail I left him a message to call me as soon as he could, he never returned my call. When I arrived at work I asked what was g	going on and (b)(6) ACC told me that something very serious had happened.
Once enough airmen had arrived they formed MM	B teams and dispatched for the WSA. We were briefed that we going to conducting a SEV, and to leave it at that

	(b)(6) ACC of Weapons Handling) briefed us on notes he brought back from the production meeting that morning. He wrote	out the maintenance for the next week on the white board in the NCOIC's office.
GZ203 was a Tactical Ferry Package schedu	led to be delivered to the flight line on Wednesday 29 Aug 07. The attendees of the meeting, as far was I can remember, were	(b)(6) ACC and I
The next time I remember discussion about	GZ203 was on the morning of 29 Aug 07 when I received a telephone call fro (b) (6) AGC
b(6) ACC om the IMF She called to find out w	hen handling was coming to get pylons from her bay. I told her when we get TAC
FERRY's GZ377 and GZ203 out of the struc	ture. She didn't recall GZ203 being on the TAC FERRY schedule at that time. I told her that I would call her back shortly. After	I hung up the phone I went to the computer to check the TAC FERRY schedule. When
I pulled up the schedule on the MUNS: S driv	ve, under plans and scheduling I saw that TAC FERRY GZ418 was supposed to be going to the flight line not TAC FERRY GZ203. 1	got on the radio to my team at structure 1854 and ask for a LAND line, when I received the telephone call from the structure	team, I initially talked with (b)(6) ACC When I asked him about TAC FERRY GZ203 talking about, he turned the phone over to (b)(6) ACC told me that I was looking at the wrong schedule on the St drive	e, that it was in fact TAC FERRY GZ203 that was supposed to be going to the flightline.
He also told me that it was written on the wh	nite board in the team chief office. I then looked at the white board and the other schedule on the St drive. The white board an	d the S: drive schedule married up, I was reassured that TAC FERRY GZ203 was the right TAC FERRY package according to all t	the documents I had to look at. The schedule on the S: drive changes very often, which is not out of the ordinary. The white board in	the NCOIC's office said TAC FERRY GZ203. I called (b)(6) ACC and told her everything was fine and we would be there sh	nortly to pick up her pylon. She said great and everything continued as normal. On 30
Aug 07 at about 2330 hours I received an un	usual recall. I was instructed to report to work, not to ask any question just report to handling. Between the hour of 2400 and 020	0 I was told by (b)(6) ACC that one of the TAC FERRY's that we sent out was not a
TAC FERRY at all, it was in fact a WR. We	were instructed to perform a Stockpile Emergency Verification(SEV). During preparations for the SEV, which includes get	ting shotguns and ammunition from the IMF. I talked with (b)(6) ACC this could happen. I told (b)(6) ACC which TAC FERRY it was and she said, that was about the event. We were all wondering now	this could happen. I fold told which TAC FERRI I was and she said, that was sed with her. I was called away to go the structures for the SEV. During the SE(b(6) ACC)
(b)(6) ACC and I along with other hand in the vehicle at the same time but sometime	during the night, had conversations on how this could have happened. (b)(6) ACC and
(b)(6) ACC stated the Missile Safety Status ch	ecks had been done, the TAC FERRY GZ203 was placarded and coned off within in the structure when they arrived. Everyone that kr	new what happened in the handling section, (b)(6) ACC and I were equally distraught over the event. We didn't know w	hat to say to each other but how could this happen. I can speculate how this happen
however I was not in the involved the planning	ng stage of this event, nor was I in the stucture at the time of the event. There are many checks and balances for this operation that w	ere not checked. I have heard it called the perfect storm as all the checks were missed by many different personnel involved in the s	cheduling and execution of the operation. If one fail safe had worked the storm would was tense. It was tense because none of the	torage and handling section since Apr 07. When I arrived at handling the atmosphere handling personnel respected the (b)(6) ACC The NCOIC always looked for negative things from the shop. He expected t	hem to mess up every day and really didn't praise them for any good things the shop
did. Handling usaually worked through lunch	h, breaks and worked a 10 to 12 hour day, which directly reflects how a shop chief takes care of his people. Handling maintenance pra	actices although safe, secure, and reliable was a little bit questionable at times. The NCOIC did not mentor his first line supervise	or's on their duties while at or in the structure. I took the challange on. I ensured that maintenance practices were up held and the s	shop used technical manauls for every operation. I also praised them for jobs well done. The shop seemed receptive of me but	it only made their disrespect for the NCOIC worse. About three week ago the NCOIC

of weapons handling was removed and is now the ANCOIC of weapons support.(1)(6) AC (EXE) ACEs the new NCOIC and seems to care a lot about his people. The shop will become a very productive shop in the future. During TAC FERRY movements there was only a couple of times that supervision was out in the weeds looking to see if everything was going well. I do not recall QA being at any of the TAC FERRY movements. The ops tempo for SWM flight is overwhelming at time especially for the younger, less experience Airmen. It is not unusual for multiple operations to be going on at the same time. The handling section is a mixture of AFSC's with 2W2X1 and 2MOX1 working together. Although all personnel are training and certified, the AFSC's are different and have different maintenance practices. It is a challenge to ensure that tech data and maintenance practices are followed to the letter of the law. 2W2's have to do a step and check it off in the TO and 2MO's can have the book with them and open, but do not have to follow every procedure step by step. All of the movement in/out of the WSA are the responsibility of handling. Handling also takes care of all the support for structure alarms. We support a total of 6 different shops everyday. This is a strain on the young Airmen who do not get a lunch, breaks, or gym time on a regular basis. When this was brought up the (b)(6) ACC she said every shop is hurting for personnel, however did not think about the handling section not working a normal work shift (8 hours with lunch) and being over tasked with support of 6 different shops. Nothing has been done even after numerous conversations with supervision on the problems. This is not an excuse for what happened, however I think it could have been prevented if supervision would have looked at solutions to problems when presented to them. There is currently a communication break down. Many of the NCOICs and ANCOICs do not contact (b)(6) ACC on issues because she always points us to other SWM flight supervision for assistance. It is confusing at times who is running the WSA.

IV. STATEMENT
This statement will begin with my actions on Friday the 24th of Aug I am the (b)(6) ACC and I try to attend the weekly scheduling meeting to add the inputs of OGV I was in the room with several other individuals that day trying to put the final touches on the schedule. The other members in the room were the flight commander or assistant flight commanders from the following flights: A.B.C.DOT.DOW, and the weekly representative from the ground and flight schedulers. I cannot recall the actual names of the individuals at the meeting but they are all Lt or Capt grade. I recall discussing that on this ferry flight it needed to have both a IP and IR on board. The 3 of us that flew (b)(6) ACC were not the original 3 scheduled on the flight. The previous week two other aircraft commanders were on the schedule and from my memory it was not final (b)(6) ACC was going to be on the flight until we finished that meeting. The final schedule is then brought to either an ADO or the DO for review and signature.
Once I knew that the schedule was final, I knew OGV had a binder about the missions we were to fly and I wanted to review it. The previous week (b)(6) ACC gave me the binder and I looked it over but did not give it serious thought until I knew for certain that I was going to be on the flight. I believe I told(b)(6) ACC that I had the binder and that I would give it to her Monday morning for her to review
Monday morning we showed at 0800 to begin mission planning and (b)(6) ACC opened the binder and began to go through it. As a b)(6) ACC specifically take care of the fuel preparation, the TOLD and Form F. (b)(6) ACC instructed me on the process of the forms and how things were going to be different from any other mission I have flown. This was going to be my first ferry mission or any mission with a full load of weapons for that matter. During the formal briefing (b)(6) ACC briefed the necessary information for the crew and the contingencies that we could encounter. We did not get a formal briefing from any member of the squadron on how to conduct a Ferry flight or any other specific details. We were left up to our previous knowledge and the information that was in the binder. On Monday we did brief the return portion of the flight and what we would do for that as well. We initially briefed it as a 6 man briefing but once we knew that the mission would only be flown back from Minot as 3 man crew we talked about the changes and that is was going to be the same duties as the Tuesday mission. (This was not decided until after we got to Minot and until we found out that we would be still a 3 man crew.) When we were completed with the mission planning for the sorties on Monday I was pretty certain that all of our paper work was correct and that we properly briefed the mission.
Tuesday morning we showed up to the squadron and we found out the weather was not going to be we planned, but that we would still press and make a decisions airborne. The flight to Minot for the most part went as scheduled. We landed the aircraft and taxied to parking. We shut down the aircraft as we normally do except we did not add external power as briefed by (b)(6) ACC
Thursday morning we showed up to squadron and talked that since we briefed less then 72 hours we do not need a rebrief and that the fact we would be a 3 man crew the duties and responsibilities would be the same as Tuesday mission and that every thing else would be standard. Showing up to the jet, (b)(6) ACC reviewed the forms and briefed the crew and crew chiefs as I would expect. The loading of our gear and the walk around went as scheduled except that 2 of our pairs of gloves were taken the previous night. I remember counting the pins as (b)(6) ACC held them and (b)(6) ACC sat next to me. They were all there and everything sounded like it was going well and nothing seemed out of the ordinary. Once we got 2 sets of gloves, we started engines and taxied the aircraft. The remainder of the mission went as scheduled and there was not anything out of the ordinary to report. The shutdown of the aircraft was done so the same way we did it at Minot, and that was with power off. We went into maintenance to complete the debrief with them and the went upstairs to do the crew debrief End of Statement (b)(6) ACC

IV. STATEMENT
I am the (b)(6) ACC	for Minor AFB. My duties include accountability and management of all nuclear material maintained on this ir	nstallation. To accomplish this we utilize the Defense
Integration And Management Of Nuclear Data System (DIAMONDS). DIA	AMONDS is a Defense Threat Reduction Agency
(DTRA) system which allows tracking of nuclear weapons and components	DoD wide. The process for tracking a warnead through
DIAMONDS consists of two main stages: first the maintenance data is ento	ered into a Status Change Report(SUR) by the technicians who perform the maintenance, then the data is verified by the a	accountability section. The maintenance team must utilize two personnel to enter DIAMONDS data. The first to enter the data data is submitted electronically to the Nuclear Ordinance Commodity Management	1, the second to vertily. Once one is accomplished the transaction data against the DIAMONDS database, and against the Location	agement (NOCM) section. NOCM with vorty the

and the DIAMONDS database, then the NOCM section will approve the SC	The SCR data will then be compiled automatically by
DIAMONDS into a Weapons Status Report (WSR). The WSR is the form to	utilized to inform DTRA of what maintenance has occurred. If the SCR submitted for approval from the maintenance section	to NOCM contains erroneous data, it will be rejected by NOCM and electronically returned to the maintenance section.
In the case of a Tactical Ferry operation, the only interaction between the N	NOCM section and the maintenance section would be during the removal of warheads. This would be verified as previously stated	d, and the warhead status would change from associated to the missile to being unassociated, at which point the missile and launcher	r will cease to be tracked by DIAMONDS, and only the warhead status is reportable per 11N-100-3150. Therefore a missile and lat	uncher, loaded with a TYPE 3 trainer or a Tactical Perry

On Thursday the 30th of August I was recalled at approximately 2200 hour	rs and instructed to report to the Command Post (CP).
When I arrived I was informed of the potential situation involving pylon GZ	7203 loaded with 6 Advanced Cruise Missiles containing W80 warheads being flown to Barksdale AFB. As the situation w	was being confirmed I recommended to my chain of command that we perform a Stockpile Emergency Verification (SEV) and t	that I proceed to the NOCM office and verify the data for pylon GZ-203. I went to the Integrated Maintenance Facility (IMF) and ret	trieved the build-up sheet for pylon GZ-203 to confirm its suspected payload. I then checked the data in DIAMONDS which was co	onsistent with the build-up sheet confirming that
GZ-203 was loaded with six W80 warheads. Upon this confirmation I conta	acted (b)(6) ACC at CP via STE III and informed him of my data. After relaying the information, I began checking reference	es for further instructions, and preparing for a SEV.

(cont from pg 1) very deliberate, thorough, and contained numerous safeguards and oversight. I reminded them of the importance of getting these right. (b)(6) ACC assured me that the process was sound, had been working well to date, and they would carry it through to completion.

Our procedures with regards to our nuclear generation mission appear solid. We recently completed a GLOBAL THUNDER generation exercise and were able to generate all our aircraft within the demanding timeline. All assets were subsequently downloaded and returned to storage without incident. The only major concern I had during the entire exercise dealt with the aircrew side. One crew failed their Command and Control Procedures test. As evidence of the importance we place on getting this business right, in addition to the required decertification and retraining, I recommended that bi66 ACC consider letters of counseling to the aircraft commander and radar navigator, and verbal reprimands to the entire crew. This corrective action was implemented, in conjunction with extensive retraining for all crew members.

UNCLASSIFIED IV STATEMENT (b)(6) ACC and my load crew for that morning. (b)(6) ACC went out the morning of last Wednesday the 29th of August Around 0900 hours to the APA stub 29 for a loading operation. We prepared the aircraft for loading operations. Two tow trucks towing 2 pylons parked in front of the aircraft. I helped back them up to the aircraft. We prepared both left and right pylons. The right pylon had a paper taped to the pylon stating "TAC FERRY PKGS." This was only on the right pylon and not the left pylon. I was going to bring this up to my team chief but never got the chance to remove it. We started on the right trailer first but had problems with the trailer itself, something about the brakes not allowing the trailer to go back a certain amount. So we stopped the loading and switch from the right side to the left side of the aircraft. The left pylon loading went smooth and we finished loading the left but trailer maintance guys were still working on the right. So I went to lunch with (b)(6) ACC we both came back around noon and sat in the truck eating lunch with all sitting in the truck and talking watching the trailer maintance guys work when (b)(6) ACC drove up to the aircraft with b)(6) ACC I was told he would relieve me because I was needed elsewhere on the fightline for another loading operation, I left with (b)(6) ACC and countinued my day END OF STATEMENT (b)(6) ACC (b)(6) AC V. IV. STATEMENT
l arrived at Minot AFB (b)(6) ACC and held assignments in the (b)(6) ACC within 91 MMXS, and (b)(6) ACC within 91 MOS. (b)(6) ACC I was re-assigned to 5 MUNS into the (b)(6) ACC position. Upon entering 5 MUNS. I was able to work alongside the soon to be departing (by6) ACC and quickly realized my weeks were full of meetings providing status to leadership at the 5 MXG and 5 BW level. I did not receive any formal training to do my
igh. Discussions with 161 ACC lowed me to get somewhat up to speed on some programs before by ACC if only to know by name what they are, who's in-charge of them, why they're important, etc. Tac Ferry was brought up, but my knowledge for the movements in the fashion they were being accomplished was to save money and time. It was explained to me that ACC had ordered the moves to happen, but didn't map out exactly how to do it; and that between (b)(6) ACC at 2 BW, the two had established the plan for Tac Ferry. With that, I asked (b)(6) ACC to continue forward with Tac Ferry, as I believed he knew the inner workings as to what needed to happen, as I was still getting up to speed on what to do in my new position. My typical weekly schedule is as follows: 0800 - receive updated status of the MUNS events scheduled for that day. This includes reviewing information on MK-12A RS/RV and Reentry Sys Test Set status, daily FRAG for Conventional, SWM High Bay frame (in use) status, Armament Flt's scheduled work, Vehicle Status, and Pylon & CSRL status of those not currently loaded or in use. I attend an 0830 Aircraft Status meeting at the MXG daily, and until a few weeks after (b)(6) ACC arrived, only briefed the status of the RS/RV work we provided to the 91 SW. Her arrival allowed MUNS to show what we felt was important to the MXG CC, providing status of the FRAG, Daily IMF Mx, Tac Ferry readiness (6 of 8 ready for shipment, 8 of 8 ready for shipment, etc.), RS/RV status, and vehicle status. That change was short-lived, and we were asked to show status in a traffic light representation, showing only macro-level detail (FRAG - (green), Ready to Support the following weeks scheduled flying/training). I also attend a 1400 Aircraft Status meeting that is chaired by the 5 BW CC. There, 5 MUNS provides the same input (to include real-time updates) that we provided at the 0830 MXG meeting. On Wednesdays, I attend the 5 MUNS Staff Meeting, followed by the Pre-21-165 meeting at the Ops Grp at 1100. On Thursdays, I chair the MUNS Scheduling meeting at 1000 hrs as a tag-up with the Flights to go over the schedule. The schedule that I see are only the PowerPoint slides the only schedule that I knew of. I just found out today that what I considered the MUNS schedule is in-fact combined with a different set of information at 5 MOS that may provide different information than what I'm seeing at the MUNS Scheduling meeting. When I entered the position, I attended the meetings with the (b)(6) ACC and I believe those slides were all that he looked at as well. He did not mention to me, and did not train me on any other scheduling data that could have been provided to me. (b)(6) ACC and I split up our work into pieces we could each run with. I started working closely with Conventional Flt in May to work details for the Phase II (CORE) that had already been planned for early July. This added more meetings to my schedule to provide XP our MUNS inputs throughout the Spring & Summer leading up to the Phase II exercise. During the week of the scheduled work for the high bay to download the warheads from GZ203, both the MUNS CC and (b)(6) ACC were on leave. (b)(6) ACC put me in-charge, and I had (b)(6) ACC
(b)(6) ACC fill-in as th(b)(6) ACC This added a few extra meetings to my schedule such as 5 MXG Staff Meeting, 5 BW Staff Meeting, IREP and MSEP. As a (b)(6) ACC for 5 MUNS, I may have certified a few newcomers to the Sq as well
Meeting, IREP and MSEP. As a (b)(6) ACC for 5 MUNS, I may have certified a few newcomers to the Sq as well during this time. To the best of my memory, I did not go out to the WSA to visit SWM Flt during this time. I believed the Tac Ferry operations that the members in SWM Flt were accomplishing was solid, and did not perceive any problems from its members or leadership. Monthly QA reports, an LSET, and an NSSAV provided me feedback that showed first hand our programs and maintenance was solid. For the day in question, I don't know how or why GZ203 was pulled out of the structure and sent to the aircraft I was not there. GZ203 was in the schedule to be taken out to the aircraft, on the PowerPoint slide show that I'm provided at the Thursday 1000 hrs Scheduling Meeting. I remember asking if there were any changes to be made (to my only perception of the schedule), and there was not. (b)(6) ACD END OF STATEMENT (1)(6) ACD UNCLASSIFIED IV. STATEMENT (b)(6) ACC l am the for the 5th Munitions Squadron. I have held the position of (b)(6) ACC for approximately nine months I am responsible for approximately 25 day shift Airmen performing maintenance on nuclear weapons, components and equipment This statement is in reference to the incident that occurred on 20070829. On 20070830 I received a telephone recall at approx 2300. I was to initiate a recall and have all day shift personnel to report to the IMF nlt 0100. I arrived at the IMF at approx. 2330 (b)(6) ACC AF(b)(3)(b)(3) DOE AF (b)(3) He told me that wasn't the case and at that point let me know that it was Minot who had sent a hot package to Barksdale. We left it at that and I was to brief that we received msg to perform a SEV. At that point I formed crews to hold the necessary positions to access structures in support of the SEV. After verifying with my Team Chiefs that they were aware of what should be signed out and ready, I went to (b)(6) ACC and asked for a smoke breakbies and a smoke breakbies and a smoke bre bx6) ACC vent out to the smoke break area with me around 0030. We held small talk; talked about what we needed to do, and, even though I knew enough about what had happened, I carried on a conversation with (b)(6) ACC about what could have happened for us to have been recalled. During our conversation in the smoke break area. (b)(6) ACC approached me. Initially it was small talk, asking how I was doing and if I knew what was going on I again talked about possibilities, never mentioning that I knew. He then proceeded to ask me if I remembered a conversation we had on the phone. I asked for clarification since it isn't uncommon for the (b)(6) ACC to have several conversations throughout a maintenance week. He asked "Do you remember me calling you and asking about 203?" I replied "I do remember." I believe this conversation took place on a Monday or Tuesday. This conversation was specifically about bringing GZ203 up to the high bay for TAC Ferry prep. I cannot say for sure the date on which this conversation was held. He then asked "Do you remember telling me that wasn't one we were doing?". I replied "I remember telling you that one was not rolling up, we are not doing that one." He then went back to the conversation about what rolled and said he thinks 203 is the one that rolled to the line. AF (b)(3) AF(b)(3)He told me that after he got off the phone with me he talked to (b)(6)He said that (b)(6)that 203 was supposed to roll. I was very serious at this point and reassured [supposed to roll AF (b)(3) The conversation ended there and I went back into the IMF and TSgt Clevenger walked over to a handling vehicle I immediately went to the Team Chief office and closed the door. I didn't want any Airmen to figure out what had happened or what I was looking for I logged into a computer and pulled up the Build Up Program; I wanted to see for myself what GZ203's build up reflected. AF (b)(3) AF (b)(3) AF (b)(3) I printed the build up from the program and went to look for the build up binder which contains the verified and signed build up sheets for the packages. I went to (b)(6) ACC and asked him for the binder, GZ203 was not in there. When I asked him where that one build up sheet was he informed me that NOCM had taken the sheet for accountability purposes. At this point I was honestly afraid that someone would try to manipulate or after the build up sheet for GZ203 so I kept the printed copy of GZ203 with me until 20070907 when I handed it over to the investigation team. With that, I headed out to the structures to perform the SEV. AF (b)(3) AF (b)(3) out there (b)(6) ACC asked me if I had any team members who were signed off on how to use J Bars. I told him I was but probably not the others. He said he would get another handler to help him reposition the cans with the J Bars to aid in the removing of H1388 lics. While waiting for the verification team, (D)(6) ACC asked me if I knew what was going on. I made a comment about how we were called in for a SEV. I'm sure he knew I was prettly sure this isn't how a SEV normally happens. V. sure we would get a JST package for what was replacing GZ203. I at no time asked if they were going to remove GZ203 from the schedule. I was only concerned with getting the high bay squared away. AF (b)(3)

AF (b)(3)
AF (b)(3)
Once we have everything scheduled and work orders created, we begin the maintenance. AF (b)(3)
AF (b)(3)
AF (6)(3) Once the TFP/Type 3 payloads have been associated to the ACM Package the package is downloaded from the frame and a post download is performed. Once the team chief is done with the post download, a 7 level must do an inspection on the package to ensure everything has been c/w. At this time, I walk around with either a team chief or team member and start the build up sheet. This is a document that allows us to see what is associated to a package down to the position on the pylon. Missiles/racks/payloads/ejector carts are listed by serial number and when they are DIFM. Once I have all the information needed to complete the build up I enter the information into the Build Up Program. When the information is complete, a copy is printed and a MSgt on shift has to verify the package against the build up. While a MSgt, along with either a team chief or bay chief, verifies the package (this includes looking up into the payload bay through the view ports in the payload bay door to verify either a "nuclear" serial number or an "inert" marking or a white TFP) against the build up I would have a team chief or team member place "TFP PACKAGE" or "TAC FERRY PACKAGE" signs on both right and left sides of the pylon next to the pylon number and one sign on the front of the pylon if it were a TFP Package. To the best of my knowledge the only time a package is marked with the TFP Package/TAC Ferry Package signs is when it is in the high bay and the build up has been verified. At no time would a High bay Airman access a structure to mark a package.
AF (b)(3)
the Tow Team access. Once inside the area (high bay) the Tow Team would either ask if the Weapons Safe Status Checks have been complied with during the download/post download operations, making it a continuous operation. If the tow team receives verbal confirmation from the high bay Bay Chief, Team Chief or certified Team Member that the Weapons Safe Status Checks have been complied with, they would, to the best of my knowledge, check off the steps in their T.O /checklist as PCW. If the Tow Team does not verbally check to ensure the Weapon Safe Status Checks have been complied with, it is their responsibility to comply with the checks during their Prep for Tow procedures.

In addition to the process descr	ibed above there was a require	ement to build some Tactical Ferry I at this point there were six pylor

GZ pylons (b)(6) ACC visited the high bay to observe the prep actions. I was questioned as to how someone could distinguish between a GZ
Pylon loaded with Tactical Ferry payloads or Type 3 trainers and a GZ Pylon loaded with W80 warheads. I informed them both that the only way to tell was to look through the windows in the ACM payload bay door. I showed them both how there was a stencil on the W80 that says
NUCLEAR and a stencil on the Type 3 trainer that says INERT and a stencil on the Tactical Ferry Payload the says TACTICAL FERRY and that the Tactical Ferry Payload was painted white. A few minutes after this conversation I was directed by (b)(6) ACC that once a GZ
pylon had been prepped for Tactical Ferry to label the Pylon with a sign that reads TAC FERRY PACKAGE. This was accomplished by typing TAC FERRY PACKAGE in a word document in a large font, printing the page out, placing the page in a page protector and taping it to the Pylon in three places. The three places were; one on each side of the Pylon next to the Pylon serial number and one on the nose faring of the position two missile. These three signs would allow a person to see TAC FERRY PACKAGE from either side of the Pylon, or the front of the Pylon.
These signs were attached to GZ Pylons in the High Bay prior to transport to the structures. This process was clearly explained at the next production meeting along with the requirement to cone off each Pylon that had been prepped for Tac Ferry once it was put into a storage structure. Also it was explained that the TAC FERRY PACKAGE signs would be removed, by the handling section, prior to transporting a Tac Ferry Package to the flight line. There is no possibility that I could conceivably imagine where signs would be placed on a Pylon containing W80 warheads.
The signs are only posted on the GZ Pylons while they are in the high bay. Once the Pylon is downloaded and ready to be transported to the storage structures a buildup sheet is accomplished. This buildup sheet contains a list of missile, ejector rack, ejector cart, and payload serial numbers and inspection expiration dates for each component of the pylon. Prior to a package being transported out of the high bay the buildup sheet is verified and signed by two people, one of which is a MSgt. The MSgt actually comes out to the High Bay and inspects the missiles, racks, pylon, and payloads to ensure the serial numbers on the components match the serial numbers on the buildup sheet. This sheet is signed by both individuals prior to the Pylon being transported to the structures (AX6) ACC

The normal practice for the 5 MUNS SWM flight is to have a production meeting twice a week, one on Tuesday and one on Friday, both at 0800hrs. These production meetings are usually chaired by a SWM flight Production Super and are held in the SWM flight conference room and they are attended by the NCOIC of each section in the SWM flight or their representative if they are unable to attend. The shops represented are: Missile Maintenance, Weapons Maintenance, MK 12A. Weapons Handling, Weapons Support, VACE, NOCM, and Analysis. The Friday meeting covers how things have progressed during the current week and what things need to be accomplished during the coming week. The Tuesday meeting covers how things are progressing during the current week. There are instances when the time or date or both of these meetings are moved, for example if Friday is a down day, then the meeting will be moved up a day to Thursday. I normally attend these meetings and upon their conclusion I brief (b)(6) ACC on what the next week's events are. When I return to my office at the IMF I will either call the bay chief up front to my office, or go out to the high bay and brief the bay chief on what I learned at the production meeting and how it will affect our section. I stress the priority of certain things

However there have been instances when my section or another section from the IMF has had to augment the Weapons Handling section because they are undermanned. The reasons they were undermanned in these cases ranged from (b)(6) ACC scheduling multiple people for an all-day appointment on the same day a tasking requiring a large amount of people was scheduled, to not being able to respond to an alarm because the shop had sent everyone to the gym for personal PT time. There have also been multiple DSV findings against the Handling section from Quality assurance evaluators ranging from not wearing a set belt during a transport operation to attempting to transport weapons without ensuring the tow drivers had their firearms. Recently (b)(6) ACC has been removed from the Weapons Handling section and he has been replaced by a (b)(6) ACC

I did not make such action for GZ203.

If there was a work order to transport GZ203 to the flightline it is important to determine whether or not it was created as part of the job flow package. If the work center event the three numbers after the nine job control numbers is a 001. This job most likely was created at the shop level. If it in fact the WCE is a 010 the job was created was created as a job flow package and the work center events (001-009) would have had to be deleted individually.

Currently our analysis section only completes scheduling actions for XWSW Weapons Maintenance and XWSM Missile Maintenance and does not schedule or track XWSH Weapons Handling actons/maintenance.

(IV STATEMENT	. :- 003/
In preparation of flight: Upon learning I was on the tactical fetry flight I asked the question to the flights of the office in charge of these flights if it was OK I flew on this sortie as a non CMR Nuclear person and also that I was on administrative PRP and dead in nuclear weapon deliveries. She responded that (b)(6) ACC said that would be fine and I was a class the crews had to attend to participate in this event, and she informed me there was not, however there was a bir OGV that had some information in it I should look at prior to the flight and that she had done one of these flights before. Monday mission planning day, I showed for the standard weather brief, and then moved to the crew room where we would spet of the mission planning day. (b)(6) ACC had brought the binder from OGV for our mission planning, and I began to review contents. It consisted of flight paperwork, a quick little checklist of what is expected of aircrew for this mission on MP a day, and a powerpoint presentation containing mostly fuel information that had been created by the 5 OSS. After approxim hours of mission planning, I pulled together my ferry crew as well as the additional 3 personnel who were flying home with Minot into our crew room and we accomplished a crew brief for the return sortie. Focusing on the mission of safely return weapons home and then figuring out who would accomplish what on the sortie and for preflight actions (I would do the pilot/copilot walkaroun(4)(6) ACE extra crewmember would do the EW not flying checklist, and (b)(6) ACC would do the and weapons preflights). Following the crew brief for the return trip, the three crewmembers of my crew then did anothe crew brief for the Tuesday sortic ensuring any additional items for our individual crew were briefed.	ly was good oot there oder in On the ond the rest the and fly mately 3 ith us from uning the
The Tuesday show was standard, we got to the aircraft, the crew chiefs got into the bus and I did my prebrief with them the checked the forms reading them aloud to the crew. Following, we got out of the bus and unloaded our gear, I did the pilot copilot walk around, the copilot did the EW not flying checklist the RN did the offense walk around and weapon preflight, for the weapons were already pulled when we arrived at the aircraft. Following the walk around, ground ops were standard started to have some hydraulic mx issues upstairs while the RN was trying to get the MIUs to operate properly. Eventually hydraulic malfunction was fixed, however the MIUs were still not operating properly. I elected to start engines when the said he thought the problem may be an electrical issue so I could get us on aircraft power and that may solve the problem had the 4 generators online, the RN and the specialist were still unable to fix the problem. As we got out of the aircraft specialist told me he needed another 30 min to work one more thing, then he would be out of ideas and we would have to the weapons. About 10 min later, a maintainer noticed a circuit breaker in the forward wheel well was pulled and collared was supposed to be in. The maintainer pushed the CB in and then we got back into the aircraft and started engines and the check went well. There were no more maintenance issues on the ground. I got our clearance to taxi from the OG through and then we performed a standard taxi/take off. I performed the take off, allowing the copilot to get the landing at Minot. Toute of flight was per the binder handed to us from OGV, and we attempted to get a weather update prior to hill city our decision point to ensure the runway at minot was still predicted to be dry since we were not supposed to had on a wet runveculd help it. During the penetration at minot, the SOF advised us they believed the barksdale maintainers had left a laptor wheel well. The RN recovered the laptop, and then the copilot landed at Minot uneventfully and	and, the pins d until we ly the specialist. The show for the Thursday flight was at around 0545, the crew received a weather brief, checked NOTAMS, called back to the 96 BS to ensure there were no new FClFs, and did a quick reattack as far as the sortie, and ensured no one was DNIF and everyone had crew rest, then filed a flight plan and ensure a copy of flight orders were on file. Following that, each crewmember went and got our life support equipment, and the RN went to the command post to get our secrets and DTUCs. We met at bus time, and the bus arrived about 8 min late, then we headed to the flight kitchen and got our food and our water jug filled with water. Following that we arrived at the aircraft 61-0010 parked on Stub 29 the same jet we had brought to Minot 2 days prior.

The crew chiefs once again climbed aboard the bus and I as the AC briefed them on the checklist procedures and emergency procedures in the event we encountered a problem. I also verbally briefed the forms to the crew noting the 12 uploaded AGM-129s and the uploaded pylons. I do not at this time recall if a preflight had been written up by any weapons/munitions personnel. As we completed that step, we unloaded the bus and I began the pilot and copilot exterior inspections as the copilot performed the EW not flying checklist and the RN performed the weapons preflight and offense checklist as our duties dictate: the weapon pins were pulled prior to crew arrival at the aircraft. When I was complete with my walk around, I climbed up the hatch and started my interior inspection, when the copilot and RN informed me their gloves were missing from the aircraft and I called life support to try and get him and the RN a new set of gloves. As the copilot and I were accomplishing our interior inspection the RN came upstairs and showed us the pins for the weapons and we counted to ensure all 14 were there, a requirement for all crewmembers on the aircraft. Engine start was delayed while we waited on gloves for the 2 crewmembers, however there were no maintenance delays. As we prepared for taxi, I called the OG through the SOF to ensure we were clear to taxi, and upon clearance, we performed a standard taxi and takeoff. The route of flight was flown as depicted in the OGV binder. I flew the penetration and approach to Barksdale uneventfully, and we landed and taxied to park.

I anı (b)(6) ACC	at the Integrated Maintenance Facility working in Lowbay I got to work at 1445 on the 30th of August and was assigned as one o	I two members in a Tow Team. Two members of Highbay formed another Tow Team. (b)(6) ACC was assigned Ammo 5. We head	ded to the flightline about 1630. We waited at the Flight Kitchen as stalled due to some Lightning within 5'. Around 1900, we left the Flight Kitchen to wait near the plane
I think it was 2000 or a little past, when the Load Team finished t	he two downloads. That is when the other Tow Team, the Highbay one, began doing safe status checks for both of the packages. I sa	iw them check ours, then move onto their package. That is when they came over to us to tell us that their package was 'hot'
At that time (b)(6) ACC (One of the Highbay Tow Team Me	mbers) began making calls to get Security Forces, to setup a
No-Lone Zone (b)(6) ACC checked their package to see if it w	as indeed 'hot'. I also checked one of the missiles' warheads and saw that it was Nuclear.
After many calls were made. (b)(6) ACC	left to pickup a few of our upper management
When they arrived on scene, they too checked the package to see	e if it was 'hor'. I'd say aboni 2200, Security Forces showed up and setup a No-Lone Zone. My Tow Team was told to wait until the	hot package was put away before towing ours back to the Integrated
Maintenance Facility	•
Around 2300 to 2330, another Highbay Tow Team showed up, a	rmed, to tow the 'hot' package to the structures. After they had it put away, my Tow Team pulled our package to the IMF. We ended u	ip back there about 0030-0100.

IV. STATEMENT My first impression was very positive. I read pass reports and the unit had received several accolades such as Maintenance Effectiveness Awards, outstanding and excellent Logistics Standardization Evaluation Team visit, Nuclear Surety Assistance Visit, etc. The squadron commanders were very dedicated incividuals and all indications were they ran a tight ship operation. My deputy and Chief hit it off right away. In my initial brief to the squadron commanders on 19 June 2007 among the areas I laid out was having professional pride in your squadrons and to set the standards high and follow them; organize, clean workcenters, aircraft etc. I also related to the communders that communder command. I also emphasize that to let me know of issues that could not be resolved at their level and I would bring up to the Wing CC or the appropriate staffs at Air Combat Command. After a week or so I felt that the group was stressed and chasing the statistics and that this comes more from past leadership than anything else. I quickly explained that I am not a statistics chaser or that I would not expect unnecessary maintenance just to make our statistics look good. I really can not expand on this much more and what I am being told is from individuals feelings. My initial briefing to the troops entailed attention to detail, knock if off, technical data is mandatory, safety etc. I used the phase STARTNOW (Safety, Lechnical data, Attitude, Responsibility, Training, No Foreign Object Damage/Dropped Object Programs, Operational Risk Management, We are a Team). What I did not see was a let of pride in the Munitions Squadron's facilities. Out of my four squadrons overall facilities at the Munitions Squadron would be number 4. Dering my indoctrination tour I toured the Intermediate Maintenance Facility and left very comfortable that the personnel knew and understood the nuclear mission. An observation I have made is that squadron leadership in the Munitions Squadron comes across as defensive at times and they "take you around the world" before you can get an answer. I noticed they seem to have a difficult time telling you what it would take to do something versus they are quick to say they can not. This I continue to work on communication. Another observation I have made was during our daily maintenance status updates at 0830 and then at 1400 with the Wing Commander the Munitions Squadron only had one slide showing that status of the (centry systems and reentry vehicles work Mark 12A for the Minuteman Missile. I questioned this why am I not seeing more of what the Munitions Squadron is doing day to day. After several weeks they built a new slide with more detail of the various work in conventional and special weapons flight. AF (b)(3) I had not performed this function in Weapons Handling MAYWELL before and it had been some time since I held B-Lock while still in the Missile Maintenance shop (MXWSM). I had recently been transferred to Handling so I was relying on the more experienced personnel in the team for refreshers and assistance with my duties. We had opened a structure previous to 1854 and so we followed the same procedure. [(b)(6) ACC][A-Lock] and mycelf authentic sed with Security Forces control and tower and performed the structure opening procedure. Once the Locks were off I proceeded the operate the chain that opens the door. (b)(6) ACC (SVA) and (b)(6) ACC (B-Lock) entered the structure for any of the inspections inside the structure that day. I finished opening the door completely and (b)(6) ACC (SVA) admitted the tow team to the structure and directed them to begin their hookup. Once the hookup was complete I stood just inside the structure door to act as a secondary spotter to ensure the package did not strike the center post between the structure doors during the package exiting the structure. I moved an ovange come away from the SW corner of the package (so it would not get run over), and i hallow (but are not completely certain) there was a printed sheet taned near the ID number on the Pylon that marked it as a TAC Form Papironal. Once the package was removed from the structure I walked up and began conversing with (b)(6) ACC (MCIS) until the Dylan from High hav arrived to be stored in the structure. (Ince it arrived I watched the pylon being backed in, acting as a secondary spotter to make sure the tow team did not hit the center post between the structure doors. Once the pyton was in place the tow team began unhooking the trailer and I went to the door chain. I began closing the door as soon as the tow bar had been removed and was assisted halfway through by (b)(6) ACC AF (b)(3) AF (b)(3) We then closed the door and completed closing procedures with Security forces Control and tower and put the locks on the structure
Once the locks were on we put the equipment we had in the truck and proceeded to structure 1842 (West side).
Prior to being moved into the Weapons Handling(MXWSH) shop I held the position of Training Monitor in Missile Maintenance (A CVIVENO) prior to that I attended VACE training heginning in the Sen-Oct U6 time frame, and prior to the VACE course, I worked in the Missile Maintenance Low Bay (bldg. 1134) and was mainly utilized for performing Level I ALCM/ACM Electronic testing.

IV. STATEMENT
The following statement outlines my involvement with the Tactical Ferry Program at Minot AFB to the best of my recollection.
When the tactical ferry missile movement tasking came down from ACC I was the (b)(6) ACC As I recall, HQ ACC asked Minot to build the guidance for this program (Tac Ferry Academics, Pre-takeoff Briefing, and ORM briefing) (b)(6) ACC 5 OSS/A5N) had the lead on this tasker for the 5 OG. As I recall, (b)(6) ACC was told that ACC would coordinate and approve (or make recommended changes) to our product. We had several meetings with bomb squadron, OSS, and OG senior leadership that addressed our proposal for the execution of this program. During these meetings we scrubbed our early versions of the academics, PTOB, and ORM products, looking for potential problems and other issues involving the operational piece of moving these weapons. Some of the specific conversations I recall involved the following:
1) Weather concerns at Barksdale: During the summer months, thunderstorms occur on a regular basis in the early afternoon. We planned to land at Barksdale during the morning hours to try to avoid the possibility of holding for weather and/or landing on a wet runway. The OG/CC's would discuss local airfield conditions and forecast weather on the day of the flight, prior to launch and at the ferry crew's en route decision point.
2) Instructor involvement/Crew make-up: We decided our tac ferry crews would have an instructor pilot and instructor radar navigator on board to mitigate risk. All sorties would consist of at least 1 IP and 1 pilot or co-pilot, 1 IR and 1 radar navigator or navigator. An instructor electronic warfare officer flew on the first Minot Tac Ferry, but after that sortie we didn't fly with EW's on these missions. On some Tac ferry sorties, additional crew members, some unqualified, flew on the sortie but not in primary seat positions. Extra crew members were added to these sorties to accomplish WST training and/or emergency procedure sims while at Barksdale due to the fact that our WST simulator was inoperative for re-host (Apr-Oct 07).
3) Simulators for pilots: We knew we'd be landing outside our "normal" landing window (above 290K) during these missions. We thought it would be prudent to have our pilots fly a Tac Ferry mission profile for familiarization in the WST. This WST was led by (b)(6) ACC (5 OSS/A5N) and included the following: - Departure form Minot with a tac ferry load - Numerous approaches at Barksdale at estimated landing gross weight (approx 325K) - Wet and dry RCR landings with- and without the drag chute - On my profile we flew a couple low vis approaches at Barksdale as well I've attached a copy of an email outlining the Tac Ferry initial cadre that we used as an aid to schedule our IP's for Tac Ferry sorties. All pilots on this document completed the Tac Ferry WST profile and to date, all Tac Ferry sorties have been flown by instructor pilots who completed this WST. We saw little advantage in having non-pilot crew members participate in the WST profile.
4) Training/Divert options: These sorties were planned for CMR crews. No training would be accomplished. We discussed en route decision points, holding times, and BINGO fuel weights to potential divert options. As I recall, the 5 OG/CC engaged with his counterparts at the primary and secondary divert bases and discussed parking, support and security concerns for these missions.

(b)(6) ACC before formal coordination with our counterparts and senior leadership at Barksdale. To my knowledge (b)(6) ACC 5 OSS/A5N, had sent early copies of our products for AO coordination at Barksdale. The draft was forwarded to HQ ACC for coordination and approval. It is my understanding from discussions at the time with (b)(6) ACC at 5 OSS/5 OG staff meetings that HQ ACC adopted our Tactical Ferry Academics, PTOB and ORM briefings and made them standard for Minot and Barksdale.
On 1 April 2007 Lassumed duties as 23d Bomb Squadron Director of Operations. One of my duties is td (b)(6) ACC review/approval for the -165 process. I coordinated on (b)(6) ACC for Minot Tactical Ferry sorties, including the ferry sorties that I flew on 28/30 Aug.

All crewmembers selected for Tactical Ferry sorties were combat mission ready and were current and qualified for the missions. We used the Letter of X product to confirm CMR-N for all primary crewmembers.

Our first Tactical Ferry sorties on 24/26 April were flown with 4 weapons officers and an instructor electronic warfare officer. We purposefully planned this first mission to be flown by a highly experienced crew. Subsequent sorties were flown with at least one instructor pilot and one instructor radar navigator on board.

Tactical Ferry crews began their mission planning day at the 5 OSS Vault with academics and the PTOB. Copies of these briefings have been provided to the CDI team. These briefings would last 1-2 hours, depending on the questions that aircrew members would have. In my opinion, the briefings were very complete and the products that the OSS mission planners provided were very accurate.

I'm very proud of our squadron flight scheduling process. 23d Bomb Squadron schedulers build the week's schedule, review flying currencies, and then vet through the DOS Flight Commander and Scheduling ADO. The scheduler then sits down with me and we review the schedule together. On each line of our flight schedule we list "show-stopping" currencies for our crew members. I review the non-current crew members to ensure that they are flying with an instructor. For HHD and FLAG sorties (we considered Tactical Ferry missions in the HHQ category), I ensured that all primary crew members were CMR via the Squadron Letter of X product. I discuss any corrections with the build scheduler so that he understands the reasoning behind my red-ink changes. The schedule is then presented to the squadron commander for his review prior to our group-level pre-165 meeting. The wing commander reviews and signs the schedule at the wing -165 meeting.

I'm also very confident in our squadron's step process. SARM personnel build step packages at least one day prior to the sortie. Go/No-Go items are tracked via PEX and currencies are tracked though our currency database. These products are included in the mission packages presented to aircraft commanders when they mission plan or show to fly on same day (consolidated/show and go) sorties. Crew members complete their FCIF, Boldface, or monthly 20 question test prior to step. Daily Go/No-Go items are vetted at 3 levels after the crew has reviewed these items:

- 1) SARM review
- 2) Flight Commander of the Day review
- 3) TOP 3 review (SQ/CC, DO, ADO)

Flight orders are signed by a member of the Top 3 when all Go/No-Go procedures are satisfied just prior to the crew stepping to the aircraft. Top 3 are present during the Step briefing to have "eyes-on" the stepping crews. Bottom line: In my opinion, we have a very solid scheduling and step process and squadron and group leaders apply the appropriate level of extra attention to our HHD and FLAG sorties, to include Tac Ferry.

I flew a tactical ferry sortie to Barksdale on 28 Aug /30 Aug 2007. I received a thorough Tac Ferry academics brief, followed by a PTOB. We had ample time to ask questions and discuss weather divert and contingency options. Of note, we did discuss stepping a few minutes earlier to allow additional time for the offense team to accomplish our weapons pre-flight. Copies of both briefings have been given to the CDI team. The mission planning packages were very complete. Following the PTOB, my crew broke out the package for further study and review. We accomplished our crew briefing and entered crew rest on time.

On 28 Aug we showed on time and accomplished our Step procedures as outlined above. We stepped to the aircraft, briefed the forms and the crew chiefs. I specifically remember briefing 12 ACM loaded in post-maintenance status. (b)(6) ACC accomplished a pre-flight on all weapons. During my walk-around I saw them with the ladder on both sides of the aircraft. We accounted for all weapons pins and (b)(6) ACC confirmed that the weapons pre-flight had been accomplished. With exception of a discrepancy with the proper fuel loading for both sorties, to and from Barksdale, both were uneventful. I discussed the fuel loading issue with an AMXS officer on the spot at Minot, prior to my walk around and discussed it with "Gold 9" (11 BS Flight Supervisor) at Barksdale. On both occasions I made reference to a copy of our Tac Ferry Academics Briefing to show them the appropriate Tac Ferry fuel load (Pg 3-40 of the Dash 5). On both sorties my co-pilot transferred the fuel to the appropriate loading prior to engine start.

During my initial interview with (b)(6) ACC on 12 Sep, he asked me why "Neutron," our OSS Weapons officers were not used for weapons pre-flights. My response was that "Neutron's" job is to pre-flight CSRL weapons during our nuclear generations. During the generation, Neutron will pre-flight these weapons prior to crew-show. Maintenance rotates the CSRL and each internal weapons station receives a pre-flight inspection. When the crew shows to the aircraft during the generation the offense team pre-flights the external missiles. During Tac Ferry missions no internal weapons are loaded, so Neutron was not utilized. I have every reason to believe that Minot crews accomplished their standard external weapons pre-flights as outlined in the -12 tech order.

At the time the Fac Ferry occurred, I did not know that a SIPR message had been sent establishing a req'd for crewmembers to be CMR-N. I learned of the message the Friday after the incident occurred.

Per the -1 the minimum crew for flight is three people - two pilots and one offense member. The OGV direction in the binder was for this minimum crew, but for it to be instructor to be present in the offense and pilot compartments. The strawman scheduling notes for our 1 ac Ferry flight reflect this guidance. Where this guidance is written I do not know, but that is what the schedulers worked from - We did not augment the crew past the min directed.

Looking at my current crew roster. I believe I only have 2 people that sat alert during the SAC days. I have some newer crewmembers that have never experience a nuclear generation. The basis of alert experience for all crewmembers is during NORE and NORI activity. Nuke flight activity is practiced on a routine basis. The soup-to-nuts process of generations is practiced ~3 times per year, depending on AEF rotations. The NORE/NORI activity is, in my opinion, the best practice because it includes all agencies working towards a common goal, with a minimum of simulations. Fitting these exercises into the AEF process is not an easy task.

The dual doc nature of the wing means that we will have to maintain a min capability across all does, and shift our focus depending upon where we are in the training cycle. As AEI deployment draws near, our focus shifts to that. CMR-N crewmembers still exist but the focus steers towards conventional and remains that way during deployment. Upon AEI return, the first priority is recapturing lost nuke CMR status for crewmembers. That process can take ~2 months when post deployment leave is taken into account. The post AEI time is also when the maining bills are paid for internal moves within the wing.

To the outside the scheduling process can seem hard to understand. There are a lot of moving parts and a lot of priorities to line up. At my level, I give broad guidance to the DO who then neeks that down to some closer guidance with respect to focus areas. The flight commanders, DOT, DOW, etc will then work with the scheduling office to make a plan of attack. The pre-165 is on Wed of the week prior to execution. The -165 is signed on Thu and goes final on Fri. We have one scheduler build the week and also execute – that person maintains the continuity of thought through the process.

The DO will go over the one and two week out schedules and do a quality and sanity check on the process. The Ops Sup will handle the daily execution of the mission from step to sortic land is flying today, and what will fly tomorrow.

My level of involvement in the scheduling process is at a high overhead for most of the cycle. I will always check the status of the daily execution piece and stay abreast with current ops on the fit line. Either I or the DO will attend the daily MX standup piece that discusses what flow, what is flying today, and what will fly tometrow.

IV. STATEMENT On the day in question, 29 Aug 2007, I loaded the right side pylon containing 6 AGM-129. We arrived at the spot at 1530. The pylon had two signs, one on each side, stating the pylon was a Tac Ferry pylon. When my crew reached the spot the left pylon had aready been loaded, the aircraft had aready been sealed, and disenabled. We checked the aircraft for discrepancies and continued to prep the trailer and load. After the pylon was up we wraped up the trailer and continued into our MIT check. The check went fine 1 accomplished a classified data erase after post and started to wrap up the a/c while the crew started to pull the MAU-12 rack pins and jettison pins. We then completed forms and left the spot at 1730. Nothing out of the ordinary happened during the load, except the signs on the side of the pylon. I have never seen them on a tac ferry load before. I removed the right sign from the pylon and put it into our toolbox. I believe (b)(6) ACC removed the left sign because I saw it in the cockpit duing post. Before the load (b)(6) ACC (b)(6) ACC alked about the sign because it was out of the ordinary. I do not recall exactly what we said at that point in time (b)(6) ACC b)(6) AC V. IV. STATEMENT

During my meeting with General, several issues were addressed about the schedule and the scheduling process. The issues included, the monthly and weekly process, weekly meetings, and my roles in dealing with the 5 muns schedule. The monthly and weekly process that were conducted through July and August were discussed in the interview. The monthly schedule for the month of August was made by (b)(6) ACC however all of the individual weekly schedules for the week of August, were made by (6) ACE The scheduling process was taught to me by (b)(6) ACC who previously worked on the schedule before I started taking over in the month of July. The weekly scheduling process begins on the Tuesday prior to the week being scheduled On this day I compile all of the information from the 5 Muns shops and create two forms of a schedule. One of these forms is called a job breakout which lists every single job for the coming week, and the other form is the weekly schedule that will include all jobs that are 180 days and above, all jobs that do not have a specific equipment i.d., all TAC ferry's, uploads and payloads. These two forms of weekly schedules along with the shops 380's will be presented to each shop at a Wednesday meeting. Each shop is then given the time to review the schedule and make any corrections. After the Wednesday meeting those schedules will be revised and any corrections will be made and then the schedules will be presented to the shops to again view any changes that have been made and to insure that their portion of the schedule is correct. Both copies of the schedule will then be then presented to (6) ACE b)(6) AC at a Thursday morning meeting to finalize the schedule and get approval. After the Major approves the schedules, I will then begin making the JCN's for every job on the schedule. I will then take all the JCN's and put them in a format that puts the JCN with the job, and send it to all of the flights so they can see what jobs were scheduled for their flights. Each JCN will then be checked the following Monday to find any jobs not complied with and the reason the job was not finished or signed off. The affected shop and the major will then be notified of the uncompleted job. The monthly schedules are compiled from monthly shop inputs given to PS&D. The monthly schedule will be then be made and shown at the next Wednesday and Thursday meetings along with the weekly information. Any corrections made at the meeting will be changed and then emailed back to the shop requesting the change There are weekly meetings that are suppose to be held every Wednesday and Thursday. If the meetings are canceled for any reason then the schedules will be emailed to all flights, and to the Chief and Major of the 5 Muns. This gives each shop the chance to verify that the information on the schedule is correct and there are no corrections that need to be made. The schedule will be sent out multiple times every week to give each shop the opportunity to verify the information. If the meetings are held, there will be one meeting held in the weapons maintenance building for the first four shops on the schedule (XWCC.XWCB XWPA, XWPD) These shops will verify the weekly information provided for their respective shops and the monthly information if provided. There will be another meeting held at the WSA for all of the SWIM flights. Each shop has a member from their flight that attends the meeting and approves the schedule presented. If there are any corrections that need to be made on the schedule at this meeting then a revised copy will later be e-mailed out for verification that the schedule is now correct. The Thursday meeting with the Major then takes place at the Squadron building where the myself, the major, and the flight chiefs meet to verify that there are no errors in the schedule

Changes to the schedule that are normally made are any events that are scheduled for the wrong day, or any jobs that the shop decides to postpone or move up. Changes for some shops might include equipment i.d.'s. These changes will be made on the schedule immediately and re-sent out for all shops to look at.

There were some questions on the schedule that included two TAC ferry uploads. These uploads would have been scheduled by myself. The equipment that these were scheduled on, the day they were scheduled, and the actual event its self-would have been approved by all shops dealing with this job. Although, there was no JCN made for one of the pylons therefore, there would not have been an upload scheduled on that week for that equipment. Only one of the two uploads were scheduled. I do not recall any specific information given to me about the TAC Ferry Prep's other then the information that was given to me when the schedule was made. The schedule for these weeks reflects all of the information I was given on the TAC Ferry's.

IV. STATEMENT
I attended the initial PDM III implementation Conference on 16 Nov 06 with (b)(6) ACC 5 MUNS/MXW. After the meeting, we began 5 BW coordination with ACC/A3SO for the upcoming Tactical Ferry (TF) missions between 2 BW and 5 BW slated to begin in Mar - Apr 07.
Beginning in November 06 (b)(6) ACC 5 MUNS/MXW, and (b)(6) ACC 5 MUNS/MXW, began coordinating the TF sortie schedule internally and with 2 BW and ACC POCs. IAW the ACC Cruise Missile Repositioning Order (REPORD), the TF schedule was to be deconflicted with HHQ CPO taskings (to the maximum extent possible). After 4 months of extensive coordination throughout 5 OG / 5 MXG, 2 BW, and ACC. the approved 2 BW - 5 BW TF Sortie schedule was released. I first saw the final version via e-mail on 11 Apr 07.
On 6 Feb 07, (b)(6) ACC ACC/A3SO, initially solicited wing input for the ACC Cruise Missile Repositioning Order (REPORD). After combined 5 OG / 5 MXG coordination/approval, (b)(6) ACC approved inputs for release. I sent th combined inputs to directly to (b)(6) ACC on 12 Feb 07. The REPORD mandated 5 BW and 2 BW develop specific ORM to ensure safe, effective TF sortile accomprishment prior to the first TF movement
We started working TF ORM issues at our first meeting on 24 Jan 07. ORM Team members throughout 5 OG and 5 MXG (including 5 MUNS, 5 AMXS, 23 BS, 5 OSS, 5 MXS, 5 MOS, 5 OG, 5 MXG, 5 BW/XP and 5 BW/SE) worked for the next two months identifying potential risks and possible solutions, culminating in an approval brief to Group and Wing Leadership in conjunction with scheduled 21-165 meetings on 21 and 22 Mar 07. We also solicited inputs from 2 BW ORM POCs. After receiving final 2 OG review from (b)(6) ACC 2 OG ORM POC, I forwarded the TF ORM package to 5 BW/XP for final wing coordination and release to ACC/A3SO on 5 Apr 07. ACC/A3SO staffed the ORM package internally.
During ORM coordination, we identified and examined several key issues. Of particular concern were proper 2 BW-5 BW preparation prior to execution; mission command and control; mission Go/No-Go criteria for launch, enroute, and recovery, aircrew training; identification of an initial instructor cadre to ensure standardization; specific divert base selection and coordination; CG/Ballast issues affecting safe aircraft recovery; "on-call" tanker support in case of fuel emergencies; approved jettison areas and aircrew procedures; proper aircrew mission materials (PTOB, TF academics, charts, flight plans, Forms F / fuel curves for each TF sortie type, etc.), and missile TFP verification.
Concurrent with ORM coordination, 5 OG and 5 MXG POCs worked to mitigate TF mission-related issues. This resulted in TF pilot-specific academics; use of the weapon system trainer for heavy weight landing practice with external missiles under varying aircraft and runway conditions; extensive divert coordination with landing base POCs to ensure B-52 suitability; utilization of a scheduled 5 BW sortie with planned air refueling, when available, as a backup in case the TF sortie needed additional fuel; scheduling a full crew complement (minimum of IP, CP, IR, and N) with at least one instructor pilot and one instructor radar on every TF sortie; and a detailed pre-takeoff briefing covering mission execution and Go/No-Go criteria, tactical ferry aircrew procedures, a detailed review of missile preflight actions with expected indications for tactical ferry payloads, aircrew weapon checks to ensure no missile faults inhibiting mission success, review of jettison procedures, landing procedures with external weapons, AR contingencies, and divert base considerations. I emailed the TF academics and pre-takeoff briefings to (b)(6) ACC (D)(6) ACC (C)(6)(6) ACC (C)(6)(6) ACC (C)(6)(6) ACC (C)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)(6)

Tactical ferry sorties were flown between Barksdale AFB and Minot AFB on Tuesdays and Thursdays during scheduled weeks. Crew members accomplished mission planning for both 5 BW sorties on Mondays in one of the 5 OG vault classrooms. 5 OSS/A-5N was POC for all TF mission planning. We presented the Pre-Takeoff / Mission Planning briefing to all crewmembers at the beginning of each mission planning session. After the initial briefing, IPs reviewed academics with the crew, while the IR conducted a thorough review of T.O tactical ferry procedures, weapons preflight, weapons check, jettison area procedures, and emergency in-flight notification procedures with all crewmembers. 5 OSS/A-5N personnel were available to answer any questions throughout the mission planning day.

Crew show on Tuesdays and Thursdays was 0530L, with a 0800L takeoff. 5 OSS/A-5N, 5 OSS/A-3W, and the SOF provided pertinent information (weather, to include divert bases; aircraft status, airfield conditions, etc.) to aid the OG/CC in his decision to execute that day's TF sortie. After execution, the 2 BW/5 BW SOFs worked together to ensure information cross-flow until both day's sorties were on the ground at their respective location.

Once 5 BW TF aircrews returned on Thursday, 5 OSS/A-5N collected all mission paperwork and debriefed with the crew. If possible, 5 OSS/A-5N would incorporate crew member suggestions into mission materials or TF sortie procedures.

UNCLASSIFIED IV. STATEMENT I know there was a paper (aprox 8x11) taped to the right hand side, top, of the right pylon. This stands out because one of the load crew members asked if it would stay there during flight. I remember the Team Chief (b)(6) ACC stating that it would be a FOD issue and that he would remove it before the load was complete, I concurred. I do not remember seeing any other papers taped to the pylon on the right side of the Aircraft and do not recall if there were any on the left pylon As to how I new this was a Tactical Ferry mission is as follows: We were/are notified through production (Bomber 1) as to which Aircraft we are sending and receiving for Tactical Ferry missions. The Bomber I sheet (product used for tracking Aircraft and status) has notes such as "upload pylons for T/F" on it. On this occasion this Aircraft had come in from Barksdale, we SIT checked and downloaded the AGM-86 pylons on night shift. I was called at home for advise on whether or not we should/were required to do Weapons Preload Tests WPT's on this Aircraft due to faults identified during their SIT tests. I directed the WPT's be performed prior any mating of further weapons (ie., the return set performed. It was performed and passed with no faults. There were multiple indicators that this was the Tactical Ferry Aircraft, Bomber 1(verbal), Muns Control(telephone confirmation of Aircraft # and location), fact that it arrived with 86's and was scheduled to return with 129's.

of AGM-129 pylons) that were scheduled to be uploaded the following day. The next morning there was still one more WPT to be As far as the job for the pylon uploads: I believe, but do not know for sure, that I myself created the job in CAMS for the upload of the pylons. I remember seeing a tow vehicle hooked up to a Tac-Ferry package to my left as I pulled the package that I hooked up to at the Integrated Maintenace Facility out. I do not recall the driver or seeing any type of placards noting that it was a Tac-Ferry being moved, nor do I recall seeing any placards on the package that I was towing noting that it was a Tac-Ferry. I towed my package to 1854 to be stored inside the structure. Besides the package that I was towing, and the package that was being towed that I saw. I did not see any more Tac-Ferry that day, but know that there were two Packages going to the Flight Line to be shipped.

When I delivered the package that I was towing, and dropped it off at 1854, I did not personally recal marking it with cones, nor do I recall seeing anyone else place cones around the package. From what I understand, it was not my responsibility to place cones around the package that I was supposed to drop off the package, unhook, and then continue on with other duties.

At the request of the IO, the 5 MUNS Daily Status slides for 20 Aug 07, 21 Aug 07, and 29 Aug 07 were printed for the CDI team My initials are in the Munscon log for movement of TAC ferry packages on 29 Aug 07. I did not verify package status of the TAC ferry packages because it is not normal procedure to verify package status at the time of movement. It is procedure to trust the maintainers or handlers that they are moving what is supposed to be moved. The only time in Muns Control that I would verify a package status is if I was notified of a change of status.

The Events of 30 Aug 20071 don't recall the exact time of eventsThe wing was hosting a senior NCO induction dinner. Near the end of the dinner I was approached by (b)(6) ACC that we had a flightline emergency. We exited the room and I was met (b)(5) CC and (b)(6) ACC At this time they informed me of the possibility of WR on the flightline as result of the tac-ferry. I directed (b)(6) ACC to contact also at the dinner to set up security. I immediately located the wing commander, (b)(6) ACC and briefed him. We immediately went to the aircraft. Upon arrival a PL-1 area was being established. Once control of the asset was established assembled the senior staff in the command post to prepare for weapons movement to the WSA. (b)(6) ACC immediately up channeled information to 8 AF. We had numerous events on the flight line as wellThunderstorms within 25 miles, an aircraft IFE with retained weapons and an aircraft IFE with an elevator problem. All handled very well!

NCLASSIFIED IV. STATEMENT On Wednesday, August 29th 2007 I was assigned as the tow driver for the TAC Ferry package being transported from structure 1857 to the flightline. I acquired my vehicle from weapons handling and drove proceeded into the WSA. I parked near structure 1857 and waited for the key team to arrive. Once the key team arrived I drove my vehicle over to the structure and into a position where I could easily back up to the trailer inside, the key team consisted of (b)(6) ACC (MICS), (b)(6) ACC B-Lock), (b)(6) ACC (A-Lock), and (b)(6) ACC (SVA) I temporarily held SVA for (b)(6) ACC during the opening procedures for 1857, I gave the SVA badge back to (b)(6) ACC ust as the door for 1857 was being opened. (b)(6) ACC entered the structure and walked down the center of the structure, I held his 2 man by watching from just inside the structure. I'm assuming he was verifying the inventory of the structure and/or planning out future maintenance based on what he saw inside. He returned to the entrance of the structure and I began checking out the package I was to hook up to I took my TO: 11N-H5083-I and began checking out the trailer, I completed all steps except for the missile safe status check. I understand that I did not complete this step in the TO, my reason being that I was told earlier in the morning briefing for the day that (b)(6) ACC and I were to be towing 2 TAC Ferry packages that day. I was under the impression that this package was for sure TAC Ferry, which it was I also did not see any TAC Ferry signs or cones. I finished hooking up to the package and towed it just outside the door so that the key team could close the door and move on to structure 1854 for the second package. I checked my vehicle outside, shut it down and waited. Approximately 10 minutes later I noticed that the structure doors were opening so I began to walk over towards that area. After being let inside by the SVA I started to help (b)(6) ACC by holding his 2 man while he checked out his trailer I did not see him carrying a flashlight or the missile safe status check checklist. I also helped him hook up the tow bar to his vehicle I did not see anyone complete the missile safe status check in that structure I also did not see any TAC Ferry signs or cones (b)(6) ACC called in what he was hooked up to, to control and after verifying the work order we were instructed to pull out and wait near ALCM gate 1 walked back to my tow vehicle and waited for (b)(6) ACC was the leader, we drove over to ALCM gate and waited on security forces to open the gate for us. Security forces arrived and let us through, the gate to ALCM road was still closed so we had to wait there as well. The cops arrived shortly after and let us through, we drove down ALCM road, crossed Echo taxiway, and around to the APA. We asked for permission from control to break red, (b)(6) ACC prove over towards the plane's left side and parked and waited for me. I drove to the planes right and parked, chocked my vehicle and spotted (by(6) ACC back to the plant (6) ACC (6) ACD otted me back when I drove We delivered the packages and called in to control what we had disconnected front)(6) ACC informed me that I was to return to weapons handling, both of us returned to weapons handling to continue the rest of our work for the day (b)(6) ACC END OF STATE IN ENT - DKG) ACC V. August (b)(6) ACC was expediting and I was riding "Shotgun" due to (b)(6) ACC not having a linebadge (b)(6) ACC had coordinated the delivery of the pylons and dispatched (b)(6) ACC plus crew to perform the upload (b)(6) ACC created the upload jobs in CAMS, put them on the 2430 and when we arrived at the spot (Stub 29 I think) the pylons were there I don't recall seeing any placards on the pylons (b)(6) ACC left for an appointment around 1400 and I took over the truck (b)(6) ACC and crew were able to load one pylon (Left side I believe) but there were trailer problems with the right side trailer By the time that problem was resolved, Swing shift took over and loaded the right side I think the pylon uploads were on the bomber I daily "bubble" sheet and we were told at the beginning of the week that we had a TAC ferry for that week (b)(6) ACC concerning (b)(6) ACC stated that she took care of the manning, but I had found that she was disconnected from the flight so I took it upon myself to bridge manning issues with her or I would also talk about the needs of the sections with the NCOICs and then bridge the issues with her. As all of this was occurring, I had problems with two other SNCO's (bx6) ACC who ran IMF support.

Both of these individuals also displayed problems of leadership and management, but they were worse than (b)(6) ACC as both of them were unprofessional which led to a myriad of problems in the flight. I validated my observations by asking around the flight and talking with my dependable SNCO's. I also found out quickly that mentorship at the flight for SNCO's was not occurring whereas the Chiefs were not actively engaging.
(b)(6) ACC were a lost cause so before my TDY, I gave them four weeks and told (b)(6) ACC an(b)(6) ACC that upon my return I want to know if they improved or if I need to remove them. When I returned only (b)(6) ACC gave his opinion as the other two failed to commit. I was forced to keep them in place without any personnel observation, but within two months they failed an inspection miserably. In the meantime, I talked at length to (b)(6) ACC that I wanted them fired.
Both of them would not make a commitment. (SNCO moves went through the Chiefs and signed off by the Commander.) I talked with (b)(6) ACC about their removal but nothing happened. After they failed the LSET inspection, before that week ended, I had enough and brought both to the office and fired them. Both Chiefs were not happy with my decision as it caused turmoil with them. It was a collective sigh of relief from many members of my flight who expressed gratitude that someone is finally making the hard decisions, but they were disappointed that the Chiefs failed to act and the was the one forced to take action. As for (b)(6) ACC I still had hope for him and I tried to help him with managing, but sometime in March I wanted to replace him as well. His shop did not respect him and there was no way to improve other than micro-managing him. Again both Chiefs said after the generation, then after the NSSAV, after "MSgt" results, finally after Global Thunder.
(b)(6) ACC was the individual that I knew needed to run that shop and infuse the proper mentality. I again went to the Chiefs and (b)(6) ACC stating I needed (b)(6) ACC but he worked in another flight and (b)(6) ACC would not move him. Again, the squadron did not act fast enough and leadership did not make the changes when they were necessary and this is seen throughout the flight when inaction leads to despair in the sections. (b)(6) ACC was finally removed from his position in August; six months after I decided to move them after his teams committed a series of QA violations. I finally had the support of the squadron, but I still had to wait another month before the move.
Since I could not move him earlier, (b)(6) ACC was added to Handling to give (b)(6) ACC
(6) AC a good backup. I talked with the Handling TSgt selects at length on elevating their game and a few stern verbal counselings I gave them. Also, I started an AFSO 21 event to try and validate a move and streamline their process to go out to the structure and possibly move them to another location giving them better access. (b)(6) ACC never engaged the section.
This was not the only section that had fundamental issues. (b)(6) ACC took over Weapons Maintenance where he was the most controversial figure in the flight. His management of the Hinh Bay was not as stellar as expected. He did have top cover

Additionally, when I took over the flight, some fundamental ma	intenance practices were not being done. The flight leadership chose not to engage the	se issues which are fundamental to maintenance. Chemicals stored outside the su AFI's, paperwork not being accomplished, no coordination bet	ween shops, etc are some of the blatant failures. My predecessors failed and curre	ntly the flight did not engage those issues. (b)(6) ACC came to the flight supervis	on at the same time as cnd we commenced to clean up all the flight. It turned out	that many of the NCOICs
did not feel they had an avenue in the flight to talk to since	(b)(6) ACC

My perspective and assurance	that the 2 BW maintenance and munitions folks	had performed their job properly was re-enfor	ced by a practice they adopted from Ops. The	(b)(6) ACC
(b)(6) ACC	told me he liked how Ops did special pre-brie	fs and "table flys"
before important missions, and	I he said he was going to incorporate that practic	e within his group in order to prepare the correct	"non-nuclear" missiles for Tac Ferry loading. H	lis airmen are extremely professional and cor	mpetent, and it gave me a sense of confidence th	at our jets were properly loaded for the mission	n ·

The following comments will focus on weapons preflights. When 2 OG crews perform a nuclear weapons preflight, they will check all accessible weapons (pylons) using the "2 person" concept. Weapons that are not accessible (Internal CSRL "rotary launcher") will be checked by two Wing Weapons Officers. Wing Weapons Officers are trained to check all the weapons before the crew arrives at the aircraft.

With regard to the Tac Ferry (conventional mission from our perspective) weapons preflight, the idea of a "spot check" was discussed. For clarity, either the radar navigator or the navigator will check all weapons to ensure the proper safety pins are removed. The spot check comes into play with regards to checking fuze settings: actually unscrewing the panel access door to confirm the settings maintainers put into the weapon. An informal survey conducted after the incident showed that a majority of radar navigators would perform "spot checks" on conventional loads. Some folks said they would check one weapon, some said they would check one on each pylon, and a small minority said that they would check all the weapons. You asked what drove the spot check culture...my answer was that for B-52s fully loaded with conventional weapons, like Mk-82s, not all weapons positions are accessible to the crew, especially in the internal bay. Another point relayed to me from recent history is that when our squadrons deployed to Diego Garcia for OEF/OIF (2005), crew members were breaking access door panels during the weapons preflights, therefore "spot checks" emerged...the crews had to trust munitions experts to set the weapons correctly.

One last discussion on weapons pre-flight checklists... I was informed that a GBU-31 (JDAM) preflight checklist uses the annotation (RN/N) as the response to check the weapons, meaning either the radar navigator or the navigator checks the weapon. In the AGM-129 checklist, the annotation is (RN-N) as the response, which means that both the radar navigator and the navigator had to check the weapon. When we asked our weapons officers why the difference, there answer was that AGM-129 checklist is for nuclear weapons, which requires the "2 person" concept. There is verbiage in the T.O. stating that the T.O. covers nuclear surety procedures. Again, with our view that the Tac Ferry was a non-nuclear mission (no nuclear warhead), we did not push to have 2 people preflight the weapon.

With regards to 2 OG scheduling, I think our process is solid. In hindsight, the 2 OG did not emphasize to the squadrons the proper guidance on the CMR-N requirement for crews participating in the Tac Ferry. This was based on two issues. First, the 2 OG was focused on having senior instructors onboard to ensure this mission could be performed safely. Second, with the change in leadership around that time, (I moved to the (b)(6) ACC

The schedule is built differently than at Whiteman (my last base do but not specific crew members. In part, this is due to the sheer size of KBAD. It is also in the fighter community. It allows a more operational look at the schedule, but does as a prities. My approach was to watch for 45-60 days (I took command on 26 July 07) and then we to changing something just because it was different or I did it at my last base. Another PEX integration which was adding a significant amount of change to the system by virtue e had already started putting together a Tiger Team to rethink the scheduling process.

SUBJECT: Statement regarding circumstances surrounding the unauthorized movement of WR ACM Pylon to the MAFB flight line during tac ferry operations

- 1. The following statement is given from the perspective of the commanding officer of the 5th Munitions Squadron. It is given based on my understanding of the discoveries made during the roughly 18 hour window from the first notification of the incident until the time I was relieved of duties as the Commander. Further background relevant to the incident as I understand it is also given to add information to my oral statement made to the Investigating Officer and to assist him in his determination of the cause of the incident, as well as to help prevent a recurrence of anything remotely similar.
- 2. In the hours after verifying that the mishap had occurred, and after discovering indicators that pointed to 5 MUNS actions resulting in delivery of a WR nuclear pylon to the jet for upload and ferry, I informed my chain of command that I took full personal responsibility for the actions of my squadron. I still accept responsibility as it is my duty to do, and a mistake of this magnitude cannot be excused nor accepted. Although I stand by my performance and the decisions I made as the Commander of the 5th Munitions Squadron, this statement is made solely in the interests of national security and nuclear surety, irrespective of any personal or organizational image.
- 3. During the oral interview I was asked about biographical details and questioned about guidance given to my squadron and the command climate during my tenure as Commander. I had served as the commander of the 5th Munitions Squadron for nearly 14 months. Prior to assuming command of the 5 MUNS, I had just relinquished a successful command of the 16th Equipment Maintenance Squadron in the 16th Special Operations Wing, Hurlburt Field. The 5 MXG Commander who hired me relayed to me that he had specifically requested a graduated squadron commander with nuclear experience to command his largest and most demanding squadron. I fit the graduated commander bill, in fact the 16 EMS was larger (by about 150 members) than 5 MUNS and even more demanding due to operational tempo and a lack of prescreening of personnel vis-à-vis the Personnel Reliability Program. My nuclear munitions experience was dated, however, with a 13 year gap since last performing those duties. I feel I had done my homework and closed that gap prior to the June 2006 NSSAV. In general, my Air Force service has spanned 4 MAJCOMs, included 13 combat coded deployments and duty assignments, with the exception of 3 ½ years out of 18 at the unit level.
- 4. My characterization of the 5 MUNS is one of pride in its phenomenal track record of excellence. In keeping with the broader "Team Minot" culture of professionalism, the 5th Munitions Squadron's pride and professionalism sets the installation benchmark, and is a leading element in Minot earning her positive reputation. 5 MUNS is the reigning Air Compar

(b)(6) ACC

Command Maintenance Effectiveness Award winner as the most outstanding Missile and Munitions Maintenance Squadron. Up until this incident, we were tallying up another year of accomplishments, superior evaluations and deployments that would have been formidable in competing for our 4th consecutive year as ACC's best. I think the consistency of her performance adds to the shock that something like this could happen to ACC's "A-Team."

5. All the empirical information accumulated during higher headquarters inspections, and recent local exercise performance indicated that the squadron was heading in the right direction, notwithstanding the impacts of workload and constrained career field challenges. The HQ ACC LSET inspection was only 5 months old, with the squadron finalizing closure of the small number of findings in it. To quote the LSET report on our performance:

"The 5 MXG displayed a high level of professionalism and maintenance discipline by achieving some of the best quality assurance evaluation results seen to date. The LSET did not identify any DSVs, UCRs or TDVs in the 5 MXG during the visit. The 5 MUNS munitions control and asset tracking database provided improved aircraft generation tracking and is the only program to produce automated custody transfer paperwork for transfer of PL1 assets, earning an LSET Honorable Mention."

"The hard-charging warriors of the 5 Munitions Squadron were producing world class munitions support to one of the most diverse missions in the Air Force. Meticulous, competent leadership was evident throughout the unit. A motivated, highly-skilled workforce ensured mission accomplishment despite a multitude of competing priorities. However, a high number of Special Inspection failures in the areas of support program management detracted from an otherwise solid performance."

The LSET evaluation not identifying any DSVs, UCRs or TDVs across the whole group is unheard of and it is our understanding it is a first in 15 ACC LSETs. To give some perspective on how superior the MUNS performance was, the Maintenance Group as a whole received 628 graded evals with an overall pass rate of 88.5%. 5 MUNS' contribution was 53% (330) of the total MXG's evals with an overall pass rate of 91%. Even the comment on the detractor of support program management fell into the category of special inspections in which 5 MUNS earned a 97% pass rate! The sole deficiency was in one element which received vigorous corrective action, new leadership, and a validating clean bill of health during a rigorous inspection in the June 2007 ACC NSSAV. Following corrective actions for NSSAV findings, we were just entering our NSI prep cycle for the Nov/Dec JNSI. Our solid performance during external evaluations begs many questions as to what more, in terms of management data or gaps in policy, actually exist. Just the preparation and self-inspection process normally helps self-identify deficiencies in meeting policy and procedural guidance.

6. The following information is based on my insight on the overall command climate and culture of the organization, and would, I believe, be supported at all leadership levels of the 5th MUNS. In my first month as commander of 5 MUNS, I had to cope with 3 DUIs from members of our squadron. I truly believe my clarity in communicating standards and the deliberate and determined effort to remove those who had no business being assigned to PRP duties resulted in a squadron culture of SELF-discipline, resulting in 13 straight months without a DUI. In the last

4 months our squadron has had negligible misconduct to deal with, which in a large maintenance squadron such as the 5th MUNS, speaks volumes as to the caliber of people working within this organization.

- 7. As to how I established guidance when I first arrived, I established a commander's intent to provide a guide for independent action in the absence of orders. I disseminated that policy immediately upon taking command with the squadron's SNCOs and Officers, and later with the squadron in the form a commander's call (Please See Attachment 1). My overriding guidance was contained in two booklets, the AF Core Values and the Enlisted Force Structure (AFI 36-2618) providing clear and simple expectations of all Airmen. The 5 MXG Commander's 4 Pillars of Maintenance (Tech data, Safety, Training & Attitude) were reinforced at that initial commander's call and at most every one after that. Additionally, the my commander's intent on safety and its importance in a munitions squadron is is a message delivered personally by me at newcomers briefings.
- 8. Following the string of DUIs in the first month of my command, the squadron and the MXG as a whole began to show a trend in DSV, TDV and UCR indicators in August and early September 2006. As a result of this early trend, I held another commander's call on 26 September 06 (Please See Attachment XX) to teach CRM/ORM and resort to what I called the "Woody Hays coaching method" of grabbing the facemask and shaking some helmets. I laid out my view of safety in the maintenance profession and reinforced the 5 MXG's 4 pillars of maintenance discipline; I taught CRM principles, followed by the reviewing the Charleston AFB Class A maintenance fatality mishap report to include playing the cockpit voice recorder. The intent was to show just how serious and deadly our profession can be. I culminated it with the delivery of my "General Order #1 on TO use." I handed out the order to all those in attendance. Although the form of the order was somewhat flawed (i.e. it was categorized as a "General Order"), my intent and expectations pursuant to that order were clearly communicated. The 5 MXG/CC took my order, modified it and published it as a MXG policy directive (still resident on the MXG publications page). I followed this commander's call with the publication to my squadron of my "Commander's Intent for Safety," which can be found on safety bulletin boards and which is posted on the squadron publication web site. Anecdotally, the message of the commander's intent on safety and its emphasis on everyone's general military authority to correct deviations is courageously being taken to heart by some new Airmen. Recently (4) ACA (b)(1) ACC in the Missile Maintenance Section, corrected a SrA for not wearing personal protective equipment during a maintenance task. This incident became a matter of interest for protective equipment during a maintenance section, corrected a SrA for not wearing personal protective equipment during a maintenance task. This incident became a matter of interest for the leadership due to the fact that disciplinary action was taken on another Airman who asserted, to the point of harassment, that it was not her place to correct someone of higher rank (in contradiction to the commander's intent).

9. A final tone setting event occurred during the Air Force Wingman Day events during November 2006. One of the key events for that day was a survey I published for all maintainers to take. The surveys were a combination of a similar safety survey used by AFSOC Safety the year prior, and several additions by me included open ended opportunities to comment on important topics of improvement. This data was compiled and fed back to the squadron personnel during a commander's call on 12 December 2006 (Please See Attachment 3).

Included in the questions were a number of areas such as culture, standards and guidance that ideally should be 100% absolutes but was not. The feedback provided me an opportunity to not only share the results, but reinforce and make clear the duties and obligations of all squadron members as well as the pathway to policy or tech order improvement. In responding to open ended questions such as "If we had an accident it will be because...," the squadron members detailed astutely the danger areas and typical causes of mishaps. Reinforcing what they already knew about the dangers of T.O. violations, lapses in professionalism or complacency was easy enough. However, based on the results of that study, I felt that there were important issues regarding my view of time pressure and deadlines that needed to be responded to. I was clear to the squadron that there was absolutely no imperative so great that it required rushing.

- 10. The feedback was useful on a number of fronts from prioritizing resources to addressing the concerns of the members. Most importantly, however, it provided insight to the line NCOs on the climate of the unit they helped lead. It was apparent to all of the new MXG squadron commanders that all of our personnel had become conditioned to accept chronic under funding to the point of not expecting or previously getting proper cold weather individual equipment (in Minot no less), and feeling lucky to get hand-me-down furniture from the 91st Space Wing. Also apparent was the seeming contradiction between the MXG maintainers being some of the most professional in the Air Force and the requirement that they live and work in conditions of resource and facility neglect. By the fall of 2006, following the results of this survey and the issuance of the T.O. use directive, I began actively hunting for normalization of deviance in work standards and practices. Normalization of deviance is the well known sociological phenomenon in safety circles where an organization repeatedly lowers standards or accepts risks until they became the norm. This is what occurred in the space shuttle Columbia disaster. I came to realize that there were very few chances for this to occur in the MXG, primarily due to the dominant presence of the Group Commander at the time (b)(6) ACC He was well into his third year commanding the group, and his expectations and intolerance for mediocrity were well established. In fact, when a high quality performance was turned in by the 5th BW maintainers (like the LSET result); you could always expect a brief pat on the back and a proud chest thumping, followed by a pointed description of how you could have done it better.
- 11. In addition to the command climate of the 5th MUNS, I would also like to add additional unit perspective inputs on a few areas that appeared to be areas of concern to the CDI team. The first is the tactical ferry planning and execution involvement of the squadron. I have attached a series of e-mails (Please See Attachment 4) showing the course of events and the important leadership (b)(6) ACC provided to the 5th Bomb Wing and ACC in planning a safe executable plan. (b)(6) ACC did the vast majority of the work in building the consolidated plan for both wings to work from. In that string of messages you will see a very astute concern for the communication between players, as well as (b)(1) ACC influence and support of safe deliberate operations.
- 12. Another area highlighted by the CDI was regarding the maintenance scheduling process in the MXG and MUNS, which was made apparent during a review of the scheduling products built during the prep phase of the tac ferry ACM pylons in question. There were serious and thoughtful questions posed regarding the control of the maintenance schedule. In order to view this process in context, a brief history is important to consider. Up through fiscal year '06, 5 MUNS had assigned to the squadron its own Plans, Scheduling & Documentation element within feet of the Maintenance Supervision office and Munitions Control. At the beginning of FY '07, the ACC 2R functional staffed and had approved a consolidation of 2R PS&D personnel under the Wing PS&D flight in MOS. As a result of PBD 720 and the resulting decrease in manning levels, there was no real alternative but to consolidate resources. watched this transition with extreme caution and did his best to ensure many of the gaps that were created by the move were filled. An example is the requirement in AFI 21-201 para 6.4.7.3 for PS&D to maintain lightning protection records. This gap was discovered during an 8 AF Safety SAV shortly after the PS&D consolidation. As a result, and because the lack of trust and control over the personnel responsible for them, Munitions Control was given the duty of maintaining these critical records. Also during this transition time. (b)(6) ACC followed up on 5 MUNS practices regarding MM III reentry system (RS) configuration scheduling after receiving a dull sword cross-feed where other units had issued an incorrectly configured RS to deployed missiles. During his check he discovered and helped avert the real possibility of our RS section issuing an incorrectly configured system to the field. The issue was significant enough to warrant a 20 AF/CC policy directive regarding RS configuration control (Please See also came to discover that 2R schedulers lacked sufficient Attachment 5). (b)(6) ACC training in tech school and had minimal CFETP tasks regarding munitions and missile scheduling. Aircraft and equipment scheduling dominated the training for the majority of Air Force schedulers.

- 13. Following the loss of the unit assigned schedulers due to PBD 720 driven consolidation and personell attrition, the accumulated knowledge gained through OJT for munitions scheduling was impacted and the squadron was left with (b)(6) ACC as our dedicated scheduler working under the supervision of (b)(6) ACC in 5 MOS. Both are competent leaders but are coping with priority management, skill level deficiencies and understaffing. Finally, l reviewed the current guidance and policy regarding maintenance scheduling in AFIs 21-101 (CAF Sup), AFI 21-200, AFI 21-201, AFI 21-204 and ACCI 21-165. Specific review of the ACCI 21-165 procedure is focused almost entirely on aircraft scheduling requirements and Attachment 1 to that publication [glossary of references and supporting information] does not list a single munitions related reference. Further, the 14 uses of the word munitions in that publication all refer to preparation and configuration of munitions for aircraft and sortic use. AFI 21-204 (4 May 07) identifies a "Munitions Plans & Scheduling (P&S)," though one does not exist in the CAF, but does call out duties in support of nuclear weapons related scheduling requirements. Also of note, in the maintenance policy and procedure documents, I could find no current reference for building a maintenance schedule at the squadron level. Only consolidated wing schedules are called for. The fact that one was being built at the squadron level is something that has been done as a matter of past practice. I am uncertain if it was a result of the 21-204 Munitions P&S holdover guidance.
- 14. A final matter that was raised during my interview with the investigating officer was the assertion that the personnel in the 5 MUNS Munitions Control Section were not knowledgeable of their duties and were characterized as "robots." It is possible that because of the stress of the pending investigation or a limited number of interviews led to that impression. However, based

15. In addition to this statement, I have attached an additional written statement which includes my assessment of some classified material which may assist the Investigating Officer with his investigation (Please See the classified addenda to this statement). I stand ready to assist further in any way to ensure that all the contributing factors in the chain of events that led to this mishap are investigated thoroughly to prevent any possible recurrence.

C-17 Spoiler Mishap Charleston AFB 18 July 2004

FINDINGS

- FINDING 1 The mishap crew (MC) was tasked to continue troubleshooting a recurring Electronic Flight Control System (EFCS) reset malfunction on the mishap aircraft (MA).
- FINDING 2 During shift change, maintenance member (MM) 5 recommended to the MC an unsafe and unauthorized "method" (powering open the spoiler using the control stick and depressurizing #2 hydraulic system) to gain access to the spoiler actuator/connectors.
- FINDING 3 Nine hours into their 12-hour shift, MM1 and MM2, following correct procedure, began to remove a flap access panel to gain access to the spoiler actuator and connectors, but stopped due to a difficulty in removing fasteners.

FINDINGS

- FINDING 4 (CAUSAL)MM1, 2, 3 and 4 met on MA flight deck and based on MM5's earlier recommendations, decided to "take a look" at the #5 spoiler actuator connector(s) using an unauthorized procedure similar to the "method"; definition of "take a look" was never defined or universally understood by MC.
- FINDING 5 While MM3 and MM4 held the spoiler open with the control stick, MM1 crawled beneath the raised #5 spoiler, disconnected, inspected, and reconnected the J1 connector resulting in loss of signal to channel 1.
- FINDING 6 Simultaneously MM5 arrived and demonstrated the "method" to MM2, MM3, and MM4 while MM1 was beneath the raised spoiler, however no one called "time-out".

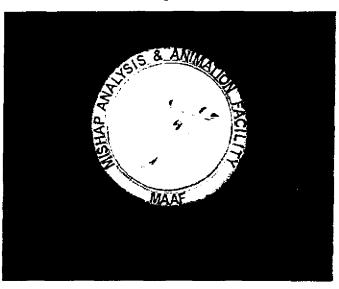

FINDINGS

- FINDING 7 During demonstration of the "method", MM3 depressurized the #2 hydraulic system, causing the spoiler to creep, startling MM1.
- FINDING 8 MM1 returned to the flight deck to ask if MM3 and MM4 were still holding the spoiler open.
- FINDING 9 MM3 abandoned the "method", re-pressurized the hydraulic system, and moved the control stick to hold the spoiler open.

FINDINGS

- FINDING 10 MM1 returned to the #5 spoiler, as the #2 hydraulic system was re-pressurized, crawled beneath the raised spoiler and disconnected the J2 connector causing loss of signal to channel 2.
- FINDING 11 Dual loss of electronic command signal on channels 1 and 2 resulted in the spoiler actuator retracting the spoiler panel to the closed position, trapping and fatally injuring MM1.
- FINDING 12 Emergency personnel arrived on scene and extracted MM1.

MEMORANDUM FOR 5 MUNS ALL PERSONNEL

FROM: 5 MUNS/CC

SUBJECT: General Order #1 - Technical Data Usage

- I in accordance with TO 00-5-1, paragraphs 1 5 2 & 1 5 7, and AFI 21-101 paragraph I.6, authorized technical data must "be available and used" when performing aircraft and equipment maintenance. Additionally, technical data must be reviewed prior to starting any task for familiarization with latest procedures
- 2 Our technicians maintain some of the Air Force's most technical and challenging missiles, weapons, aircraft armament systems, munitions, and equipment. To ensure that our technicians are familiar with the latest procedures, the technician(s) performing the task must have the appropriate technical data on-hand, and open to the page and step of the procedure be or she is performing. Having the technical data "on-hand" means that the technical data is located as close as possible to the technician without interfering with the task, and that it is readily available (open to the page and step) for reference
- 3 This order will assure the reliability our critical national security assets entrusted to our care, ensure they are maintained in optimal condition, and will help prevent mishaps, facilitating our motto, "We Put the Fire in Firepower

	Sir, I had a lengthy conversation this morning with ACC and here is what they said concerning your questions: If we ground ship all the assets back and forth between the bases it would cost approximately $8K per 4 missiles and would take considerably more than 1 year. Also, we would incur approximately 28K additional man-hours of maintenance for the receipt inspections, testing and package build-up. I do not believe there is any planned equipment shipments between here and BAFB but I have heard rumors of potential shipments/swaps of the pylon loading adapters. It is still up in the air and no firm direction has been given.
`[All of these figures are WAGs and should not be taken as gospel but this should give you a better idea of the reason the tactical ferry method was chosen. (b)(6) ACC

)	Sir from what I recall there are no negative risk factors to ferrying the ALCM (B Model) or ACM. AF (b)(3) The ORM factors from ferrying and/or ground shipment are basic ones. The ferrying factors are inherent to flying such as bird strikes, damage during loading, etc. The factors concerning ground shipment are accidents and others related to ground travel.
	I have been told that the ferrying method is being chosen because of time and money. Additionally there are significantly less maintenance tasks that must be performed when we receive missiles via tac ferry than ground shipment.

I hope this answers your questions — If you have any others please ask. UNCLASSIFIED

MEMORANDUM FOR A35

FROM: A4W

SUBJECT: Request for Redistribution of Cruise Missiles via Tactical Ferry

- Request A3S support for moving 20 ALCM-loaded SUU-67/A and 20 ACM-loaded SUU-72/A pylons between 2BW and 5BW via tactical ferry. Missile redistribution via tactical ferry, as compared to ground shipment, best meets the tight redistribution plan timelines with the least unit-level operational and logistics turmoil.
- 2. Suggest ten round-trip tactical ferry missions to begin on or about 5 Mar 07 and occurring approximately every two weeks until all flights are complete. Individual B-52 configuration will be as follows:
- a. From Barksdale to Minot: Two SUU-67/A pylons loaded with twelve ALCM and Training/Ferry Payloads (TFP) and/or Type 3 Trainers
- b. From Minot to Barksdale: Two SUU-72/A pylons loaded with twelve ACM and TFPs and/or Type 3 Trainers
- 3. We anticipate the requirement for an additional ten tactical ferry missions at some point (TBD).

- 3. Repositioning order for Tactical Ferry missions to reposition ACM and ALCM is in final coordination at ACC and is expected to be signed out next week
- 4. ACC will begin developing a formal PPLAN related to PBD 725 actions. The plan is expected to be complete in Jul 07. PPLAN development will involve site visits to each affected unit. ACC site survey team can be available to visit Barksdale on 24-26 April and Minot on 22-23 May. ACC/A5B will be in contact with each wing to coordinate the visit. In preparation for the visit, each unit should be prepared, as a minimum, to provide information related to:
- a. estimated availability timeline for transfer of excess vehicles, AGE, launch gear, test & handling equipment, trainers, etc.
 - b. packing and crating material estimates for all excess items
 - c. transportation costs associated shipment of excess items to depot
- d. any recommended equipment account authorization increases or equipment replacement
 - e. justification for any new facility or security requirements
- f. excess facilities (equipment that needs to be removed for reutilization, i.e. load frames, chillers, fuel tanks, etc)

pylons on the 9 Apr cannot promise you according to MOS Sc (also in Jun/Jul/Au	ly we do not have storage space in our structures to accept two ALCM il jet from Barksdale. We are demilling 4 ACM pylons now for DRMO, but we'll have them prepped and out of the structures by 9 April. HOWEVER, heduling, we will receive a Barksdale jet on 9 Apr, 25 Apr and 14 May g). MUNS can accept and store two ALCM pylons on Barksdale's 14 MAY those 4 ACM pylons out of the way by then.
be ready at that the that they fly up two until we free up spo	mend we have Barksdale send up two pylons on that 14 May flight. We'll me to store them indoors. An option 1 have heard from Barksdale is o ALCM pylons on 9 Apr and our base stores the missiles out on the ramp ace in the W. This is not preferable, as weather and lightning will be mp during that time. Again, their 14 May flight will work the best

The selected flying weeks have been meticulously deconflicted with both wings' strategic calendars. Barksdale's wing POC has confirmed this schedule with all involved agencies and is also coordinating it with his group and wing leadership. We are at your disposal to discuss any questions/concerns at any time or if you would like to meet to discuss the schedule in general prior to presenting it to the wing commander/vice, please let us know and we will make that happen. This schedule makes the best use of planned aircraft tail swaps and as many efficiencies as possible will be used to smartly move required number of missiles. Once approved by you and the wing, it is ready to forward to ACC. Recommend XP be the liaison at that point as they were for the wing ORM requirements list.

It's important to note that any deviation from these weeks must be coordinated with all addressed agencies as far in advance as possible. Each wing's calendar is incredibly full and we cannot simply move the planned flights to the left or right of these dates without impacting other wing requirements. There are four weeks in the last quarter of the calendar year that are not currently filled that we need to reserve as "fall back" TF weeks in case severe weather, mx/ops issues cause either unit to postpone a planned tectical ferry mission. Those weeks are identified in the attached schedule.

(b)(6) ACC

Here's our "final draft" schedule recommendation coordinated through ops, mx, scheduling, XP, etc. I think we're there. A few minor changes came up due to our April Tail Swap jet having a mx problem. It cannot make it in April, so they would like to swap the April and May "Tail Swap-Round Trip" schedule keeping the flying dates the same. Also, it was recommended we make the November date yellow (reserved on the calendar as a fall back date) and the 29 Oct - 2 Nov week a primary TF week. That gives us the November week as another fall back date, which makes sense. Also, Dec 10-14 and 17-21 are available on both our wing calendars as reserve weeks. I recommend we push our XPs/wing leadership to keep them open as dedicated TF reserve weeks.

Bottom line: The only changes you will see in the attached schedule are the type of flights in April and May (Tail Swap vs RT); the weeks of 2° August and 1° September are primed now (no longer highlighted yellow) and the last two weeks (29 Oct and 5 Nov) have swapped as primary and alternates (swapped yellow highlight)

All,

To ensure all organizations are aware of any changes or potential impacts to the TF schedule/mission and that no one is inadvertently left out of key email traffic, I plan to establish a tactical ferry email distribution list. If anyone in the To list above does not want to be added to a new "5 BW/TF Team (dl)", or if you think additional people should be added, please let me know and I will coordinate with the NCC to establish an email distribution list for us.

If commanders prefer not to be on the list, please let me know.

Thank you,

This is only IF the jet is code 1 or 2; SITS pass; no issues on download or upload; no fuels issues (leaks, etc), no red balls and working this into our own flying schedule. you have redballs, we will have issues and will be fighting daylight/weather.

The smart thing is to land Tuesday, allow maintenance and loaders to do this right including the uploads, then flying off Thursday.

I will NOT push the maintainers, loaders or weapons troops into unsafe or an extremely hurried situation. I have no qualms in calling a knock it off if I see it going that way or if multiple faults begin appearing. The jets that leave out of here will be very safe and reliable. You need to begin thinking of afternoon thunderstorms along the route and at Barksdale and possibly here, but the propensity of them are in the south.

We have a very busy week next week and can not support the additional jet. Additionally, I have heard the second jet is not being planned by Minot OG and that the extra crew if they make the trip may fly on the single aircraft

Ops wants to send two jets down next Tuesday - the tactical ferry, plus one jet with a crew to do the WST with your operators and return on Thursday. I can send a crew chief and specialist on the second jet. Your CEMA had talked with our AMXS and said they could not support the second jet unless we sent a full set of specialists down (see attached email).

Just want to see if you can or cannot support the second jet

Thanks. Gary

Bottom line: This 20 AF letter does not represent a change in business for Minot. We are already meeting and verifying RS configuration and we do it very well. But, again, the treat of mismatching configuration requirements is constant and is very easy to do. Both our Sections must stay constantly vigilant to catch any errors that crop into a schedule, no matter where the incorrect data originated. With continuous communication, and taking nothing for granted, we will ensure every Reentry System is ready for dispatch on time, every time and the RSs will meet the targeting requirements.

Thanks for supporting the vital work these two sections play in accomplishing a very critical, national program! Let me know if you have any questions, comments or concerns with the latter of the keries all equality the keries $d_{\rm line}$

MEMORANDUM FOR 90 SW/CC 91 SW/CC 341 SW/CC

FROM: 20 AF/CC

6610 Headquarters Drive, Ste 1 F. E. Warren AFB, WY, 82005-3943

SUBJECT: Policy for Reentry System (RS) Configuration Control

- 1. Miscommunication among base organizations has resulted in a number of mismatches between missile wings and the Air Room. Although the impact has been minor so far, the trend is unacceptable and can have a huge impact in our support to USSTRATCOM. Units have been responsible for five RS misconfigurations that led to sorties remaining off alert while higher headquarters scrambled to provide appropriate targeting information.
- 2. The following clarification provides standardized procedures between units and is designed to mitigate the risk associated with deploying multiple RS configurations. The policy is effective 1 Dec 06.
- a. Ensure the daily maintenance schedule is coordinated and distributed to Emergency War Order (EWO) Plans (OSKX).
- b. Maintenance Group Plans and Scheduling will confer with Munitions Flight 1 duty day prior to the RS Convoy Meeting to verify the following information about the RS:
 - (1) Site
 - (2) Type of RV
 - (3) Number of RVs
 - (4) Presence of chaff
 - (5) Configuration Code: BGRP/AGRP
- c. The Maintenance Group will provide OSKX at the RS Convoy Meeting, a locally produced RS Configuration Sheet that contains, at a minimum, the following information for each LF:
 - (1) Site
 - (2) Type of RV
 - (3) Number of RVs
 - (4) Presence of chaff

GUARDIANS OF THE HIGH ENGINEE

THIS IS A BLANK PAGE - NO REDACTIONS

- (5) Configuration Code: BGRP/AGRP
- d. OSKX JPiC validation checklists and targeting records will include the following:
- (1) Highlight specific RV validation requirements for each RS configuration in JPIC Validation checklists.
 - (2) Maintain the RS Configuration Sheet for the life of the OPLAN Revision.
- e. RS Convoy meetings will include, as a minimum, the following participants and information:
 - (1) Munitions—confirm RS configuration and provide OSKX the RS Configuration Sheet.
 - (2) Security—confirms routes, air support, etc.
 - (3) Codes—confirms code materials produced match the RS configuration.
 - (4) EWO-confirms presence of validated targeting.
 - f. RS Convoy Meetings must be accomplished NLT one duty day prior to dispatch.
- g. The following agencies will meet, as a minimum, weekly to coordinate the upcoming 2 weeks of RS movements
 - (1) EWO
 - (2) Codes
 - (3) Munitions
 - (4) Maintenance Scheduling
- 3. This policy letter has been coordinated with AFSPC/A3N, USSTRATCOM/JFCC-GSI/J541, 20 AF/A3 and 20 AF/A4. It will remain in effect until incorporated in HHQ instructions.

IV. STATEMENT

As the Operations supervised and Assign to Director of Operations for the 96th Board Squadron, I was NOT aware of the special instructions to fly only CMR-N crewmembers for Tac Ferries (to include the Tac Ferries on 28-30 Aug.). After the incident, I was made award that a message was on the SIPRNET that provided the guidance that all crews were to be CMR-N. The schedule for 28-30 Aug was determined during the 165 scheduling meeting where it was pre-approved.

Per the letter of N.s. I was aware that (b)(6) ACC was non CMR-N when I approved Doom 99s flight orders for the trip to Minot, as well as the return trip home. Unaware of the requirement for the crew to be CMR-N, I completed their GO NO GO checklist IAW OG OI 11-5 to step them to their flight.

I did NOT find it odd that a min crew was scheduled for the Tac Ferry trip. The -1 T.O. details what the requirement for a min crew are. However, due to the unique nature of what the crew was carrying, the SQ scheduled experienced aviators for Tac Ferries.

The -LT.O has examples of P-CP-RN-N-EW checklist steps. For example, the 12,000 foot oxygen check requires all 5 crewmembers to do it. It is possible that an EW may not be on the jet, yet the 12,000 foot oxygen check is still performed and the step does not apply to him. During the missile pin check, it says P-CP-RN-N. However, if the Nav is not on board and a 2 person concept is not in play, then it was the SQ's understanding that the checklist could be completed without a Navigator -- as it was for the 12,000 foot oxygen check.

I was not eware that there was a requirement for the enew to meet with the OG prior to the flight and that only the RN attended. I was aware that prior to step, the AC was required to contact the OG directly for any last minute words (b)(1) ACC did contact the OG rep prior to her step for the trip to Minot.

I would recommend a Tac Ferry-specific training program that trains the crew on what are the requirements of the mission, how to fill out the acft forms properly, proper weapons checks, fuel considerations, emergency and divert situations—from soup to nuts. I would also add a currency to it so the crews have the most recent information.

The process for selecting crow members, for Tac Ferries were that they must be an experienced crow. In this case, we had a Weapons School IP, a Stan Eval IR and a Stan Eval CP.

The weapons TO says "Missiles checked." It is my understading that each weapon along with each MAL-12 and each pylon be inspected. The TO does not distinguish between Tac Ferry and Nuc tipped missiles. That being said with no one guarding the weapons and certainly not expecting them to be Nuc tipped, I could see how a crew could fall into the trap of thinking they are not werhead tipped and possibly perform a spot check. I recommend the TO say "ALL MISSILES". Not just "Missiles."

I would like to say that the erew that went to Minot was a crew that has been recognized for their strong work ethic in the B-52. Two of the members were Stan Eval and one was a Weapons School Graduate. I have never flown with (b)(6) ACC but I have flown with them both to be exceptional officers, aviators and people. I would go to war with either one.

	(b)(6) ACC	I find them both to b				to war with either one

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS 5TH MUNITIONS SQUADRON (ACC) MINOT AIR FORCE BASE, NORTH DAKOTA

4 April 2007

MEMORANDUM FOR

(b)(6) ACC

FROM: 5 MUNS/CC

SUBJECT: Letter of Reprimand

- 1. On 7 March 2007 you failed to use or enforce the use of proper technical order, specifically the 5 MXG Massive Modular Block (MMB) operations checklist, during MMB operations in the Weapons Storage Area.
- 2. You are hereby reprimanded! As a Non-Commissioned Officer of the United States Air Force, you are expected to maintain the highest standards of professional conduct, integrity, and responsibility. Failure to use a technical order or demand others to use them in your presence puts both yourself and others at risk. You chose to ignore your responsibilities to enforce technical order usage, risking your safety and the safety of others. Your actions in this case, combined with the loss of situational awareness jeopardized not only equipment, but personnel under your supervision. AFI 36-2618 paragraph 4.1.6 states about NCOs "Exceed the standards and expectations levied upon their Airman. Epitomize excellence, serving as a role model for Airman to emulate." On that account, you have failed. In fact, I consider your failure an act of dereliction of duty. NCOs set the tone for a team or work center. I cannot tolerate even a tone of ambivalence toward the enforcement of Tech Order use.
- 3. I have issued only one standing order...that of Tech Data usage. In that order all members of 5 MUNS are required to "the technicians performing the task must have the appropriate technical data on-hand, and open to the page and step of the procedure he or she is performing." You may not have had knowledge of that order, but you because of your experience as an NCO, and a former Quality Assurance Inspector, know what is required for properly discharging your duties while performing tasks. I absolutely will not tolerate your complacency and failure to do your duty. If you fail to use or enforce technical data use again, I will take the most severe action allowable against you. As a Staff Sergeant in the United States armed forces, I expect you to live up to the standards of one. You are expected to set, enforce, and exemplify standards of conduct; you have failed to do so. Your conduct has diminished your otherwise positive reputation, and brought discredit upon the squadron. You must take positive steps to turn around your recent trend of poor attention to detail and mishaps or security incidents that were your responsibility to ensure are done according to standards...your status as an NCO depends upon it.
- 3. AUTHORITY: 10 U.S.C. 8013. PURPOSE: To obtain any comments or documents you desire to submit (on a voluntary basis) for consideration concerning this action. ROUTINE USES: Provides you an opportunity to submit comments or documents for consideration. If provided, the comments and documents you submit become a part of the action. DISCLOSURE:

SUBJECT: Letter of Reprimand

- 1. On 08 Feb 07, Quality Assurance discovered the "B" lock drawer of the key safe unsecured. As the key issuing authority and "A" lock for the Weapons Handling Section key team, it was your responsibility to ensure the security container was properly closed. This incident would not have occurred if you had performed your duties and verified (b)(6) ACC secured the "B" lock drawer as prescribed in applicable regulations. As a supervisor, it is your responsibility to adhere to all measures of security that apply to your duties. You should have maintained situational awareness to ensure all security actions and written guidance were properly followed.
- 2. You are hereby reprimanded. As a Non-Commissioned Officer of the United States Air Force, you are expected to maintain the highest standards of personal conduct, integrity, and responsibility. Your actions in this case demonstrate a loss of situational awareness, which jeopardized weapons and information security. Additionally, your failure led to undue cost and wasted manpower committed to rectify this incident. Any future violations will be dealt with at higher levels of your chain of command and will be more severe. This reprimand is not to be taken lightly. You will be closely observed in the future to ensure you maintain the standards.
